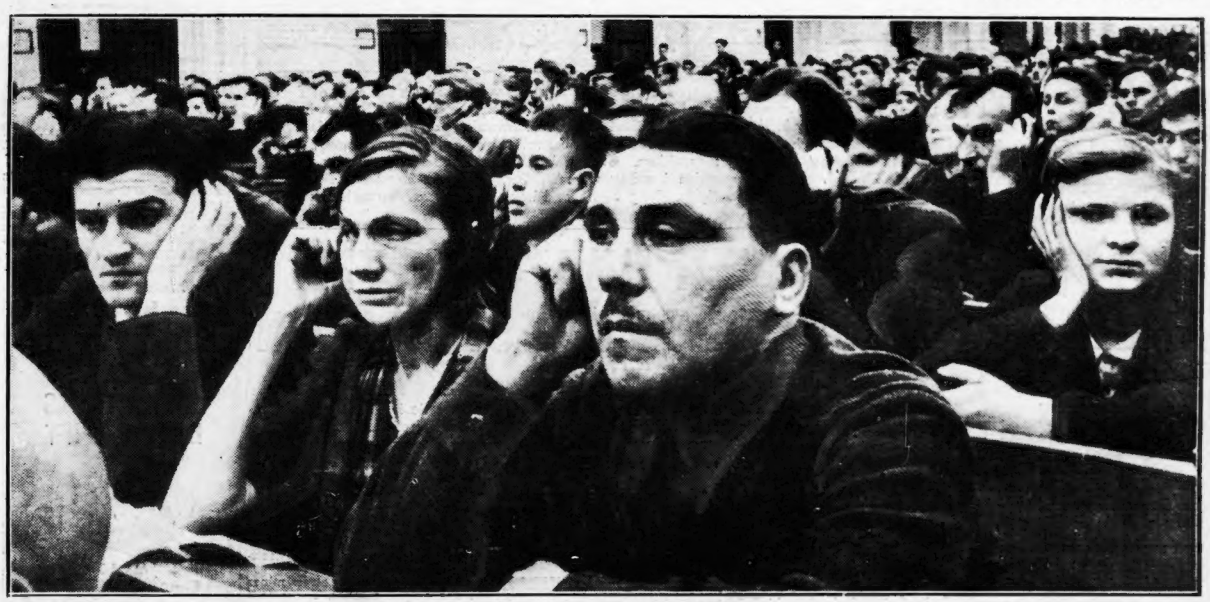
RED NAVY BLASTS WAY IN FINN PORT

STORY ON PAGE 2



Listen, Don't Talk—Delegates to the huge Soviet governmental conclave held recently look worried as they hear, through earphones, the speeches of the Russian big-wigs. Today there was more worry on the faces of the Soviet populace as meagre, or no reports emanated from the Russo-Finnish war . . . that is, no reports from Soviet sources. Finns were said to be holding their own on all fronts.

REDS BLASTWAY INTO FINN PORT

By WALTER SCHWARTZ
International News Service Special Correspondent

HELSINKI, Dec. 4—Backed by heavy concentrations of Soviet warships and submarines in Finland's Arctic harbors, Russian troops landed at Liinahamari in the far north today and launched a new offensive at various points near the Norwegian frontier.

Liinahamari is the port of Petsamo, about 15 miles north of that city.

While snowstorms and low visibility restricted military activities on the Karelian isthmus and elsewhere in the south, bitter new fighting was reported in the Petsamo district after the Russians took Liinahamari with landing parties sent by sea from Soviet Arctic ports.

Russian aviation also was active in the north, with two raids being carried out at points near the Norwegian frontier at the very moment the Finnish government of Premier Risto Ryti was making new peace overtures to Moscow.

'NICKEL CITY' ABLAZE

The so-called "nickel city" of Salmijervi near Petsamo is ablaze as the result of a Russian onslaught, it was reported. Heavy clouds of smoke billowed across the frontier into Norway.

It was estimated the Russians had landed 3000 men at Liinahamari, most of them by boat although some were flown to Finnish territory.

Finnish troops in the north are determined to resist the invaders to the utmost, an announcement said.

Reports received in Helsinki via Kirkenes, Norway, told of Soviet troop and naval concentrations in the northern areas.

The same reports revealed that a famous old Russian monastery and church at Petschenga, 50 miles from Petsamo, had been set afire and destroyed by the Soviet invaders.

Refugees continue to pour by the hundreds into Kirkenes after encountering untold hardships in their flight over the frozen tundra to safety in Norway.

MINES KILL REDS

News of fresh outbreaks of fighting in the north followed Finnish claims of sweeping successes over the Russians to the south.

Large numbers of Russian soldiers were killed, it was asserted, when Finnish land mines exploded near Terijoki at the Karelian battle front. Some reports placed the number of Russian mine victims at 3000.

Authorities also claimed 12 Soviet raiding planes were "annihilated" and that a whole company of

Rome Guards Red Embassy

ROME, Dec. 4 (AP)—Grenadiers and carabinieri guarded the Soviet Russian embassy today as a throng of students marched on it to demonstrate against the Soviet Union.

The students gathered first in front of the Finnish legation, where they cheered Finland. It was the second such demonstration in three days.

Uniformed Fascists were among the throng estimated at 3000 which on Saturday shouted anti-Bolshevist slogans in front of the Soviet embassy for a half hour before marching to the Finnish legation for sympathetic manifestations.

Allies Clamp Total Blockade as Nazis' Ship Loss Tops 33

LONDON, Dec. 4 (AP)—Great Britain and France today extended their blockade of Germany to seizure of Nazi exports, including those carried by neutral vessels.

Britain simultaneously announced she had put 33 German merchant ships out of action in three months of war on her enemy's sea trade.

(Unofficial reports list 90 British merchant ships lost in sea warfare.)

The blockade of experts shared attention with the raid yesterday by Royal Air Force bombers on the German naval base of Helgoland in which the air ministry announced "direct hits" on Nazi warships.

(The German high command said the raiders only scored one hit, on a small fishing vessel.)

Britain also announced a German submarine had been destroyed by a flier on patrol over the North sea.

410 BRITONS KILLED

The report said Germany's merchant shipping loss totaled 171,390 tons to date.

It said 144 German submarine crewmen had been taken prisoners during the three months of the war.

A total of 410 British lives was reported lost in merchant ship sinkings, compared to the reported loss of only four German lives attributed to gunfire from their own submarine as a ship was being brought to port by a British prize crew.

The announcement said the British navy enabled 21,000,000 tons of British shiping to ride the seas safely with a loss of only 4 per cent of the total naval tonnage.

4 U-BOATS SUNK

The Helgoland raid was hailed here as the most successful air offensive of the war so far.

British reports listed four more German submarines as sunk in recent days.

The 2159-ton Swedish steamer Rudolf was disclosed to have sunk yesterday after striking a mine off the British coast on a voyage from Hartlepool to Malmo, Sweden. Her crew of 23 escaped

(Two persons were killed yesterday when the 7030-ton French steamer Floride struck a mine and was beached near an unidentified French port.)

EUROPE'S QUESTION: WILL NAZIS MOVE NORTH?

ENCIRCLEMENT of Germany appeared a virtual accomplishment today in the eyes of European diplomats. Above map shows how she is surrounded by England and France in the west, with Italy a doubtful ally and potential enemy. Rumania, coveted by Russia, has refused Nazi domination and Russia, a theoretical but not practical ally of Germany, hems her in with conquest of Poland, supervision of Estonia, Lithuania and Latvia, and now invasion of Finland. Europe's question today was: Will Germany seek conquest of Denmark, Norway and Sweden to escape tightening circle and insure supplies of war materials from three Scandinavian nations?

NAZIS OPEN UNRESTRICTED SEA WAR TO CRUSH BRITAIN

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, Dec. 4—A three-fold naval campaign designed to throttle British trade was announced by the German high command today in reprisal for British seizure of German exports.

"Every ship to England will be on its death-ride!"

This was the slogan coined by the admiralty as all branches of German officialdom united in denying claims from London that British planes had scored a victory in a raid upon Helgoland yesterday.

Coincident with this statement, the official German news agency DNB once again warned of the danger of traveling aboard British and French ships listed by the Germans as "armed merchanimen" and therefore liable to sinking.

"There are indications," DNB said, "that passengers from neutral countries are disregarding the lists of armed merchant vessels made public by the German government.

"Travelers would do well to study these lists attentively."

In answer to a British communique asserting that a German cruiser had been struck in the raid, the Germans said:

"No cruiser was hit because no cruiser is stationed at Helgoland. The British succeeded only in sinking a fishing trawler."

The revived German naval campaign against England is expected to take these forms:

1—A ring of mines around the British Isles.

2—Creation of a circle of "forbidden zones" in which unrestricted submarine warfare will be carried out.

3—Increased U-boat activities throughout British waters.

Germany intensified its efforts to dissuade neutral nations from sending ships to England by emphasizing the risks involved.

Seaplanes can easily strew mines in the shipping lanes, spokesmen declared, while the so-called "magnetic mines" which caused heavy damage in recent weeks "are capable of exploding far below the keel of any steel vessel."

As a result, it was said, England is now being compelled to replate the keels of all her war vessels.

Ruth Judd Trailed By Footprint Clue

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 4 (AP)—A squad of sheriff's deputies searched a Phoenix residential district today for Winnie Ruth Judd, fugitive mad slayer, after a woman's footprints were found outside the duplex house where she hid during her first escape from the state hospital for the insane.

For the second time in six weeks, Mrs. Judd last night slipped out of a hospital ward, where she has been confined since escaping the gallows by being adjudged insane.

"The footprints look like Mrs. Judd's," Ernest Roach, chief deputy sheriff, reported.

While a fugitive six weeks ago Mrs. Judd spent four days in the unoccupied half of the house. She carved her initials and the date on a window sill.

PRINTS ONLY CLUE

The footprints were the only clue discovered since Mrs. Judd broke into a house last night.

Within an hour of the time she fled, Sheriff Lon Jordan estimated, Mrs. Judd entered the home of the Rev. Robert A. Warren, pastor of the First Free Methodist Church, and took a coat, several oranges, and some crackers.

While in the home she penned two notes, one of them to the pastor, expressing her regret at having stolen the articles and another to Governor Jones.

ROBBED AS HE PREACHED

The one to the governor, it was learned, was delivered to Mrs. Judd's parents, the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. McKinnell, by Warren before he reported the burglary to the sheriff's office.

The theft, Warren told Jordan, occurred while he was presiding over his Sunday evening services. The McKinnells are members of his church.

Meanwhile, chagrined Arizona authorities, abetted by two bloodhounds from the state prison at Florence, sought to trace Mrs. Judd from the home of the minister.

The burglary commited by the 34-year-old "blond tigress," who in 1931 killed her two best friends, was the first clue obtained by puzzled state highway patrolmen and sheriff's deputies.

Hospital authorities thought Mrs. Judd had done a thorough job of vanishing to have been no more than half an hour ahead of searchers.

Wearing a wine-colored dress and tan shoes, Mrs. Judd fled into the chilly night without a coat, attendants who checked her wardrobe reported.

DEB, YOUTH FINED FOR FALSE ALARM

Charged with pulling three false alarms of fire in Milton early Saturday, a Milton debutante and a Brookline social registerite paid fines of $50 each today in Quincy court.

Pleas of guilty to the charge were made by Miss Amabel K. Eshleman, 18, of Columbine rd., Milton, and John A. Sweetser, 17, a student, of Sargent rd., Brookline.

According to Milton police, a policeman saw an automobile pull away from one of the boxes from which a false alarm was sounded, and the policeman obtained all but the last number of the registration.

So rapidly were other cars in the group eliminated that Brookline police were waiting for young Sweetser when he pulled into his garage in Brookline.

Police said that Sweetser, under questioning, admitted he had sounded the alarms and revealed that the Eshleman girl was with him.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Eshleman of Columbine rd. Her father is a prominent Boston insurance broker.

Sweetser is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Sweteser.

3 Start 19,000-Mile Junk Trip

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Dec. 4 (AP)—The Hummel-Hummel, Chinese sailing junk which last year bobbed across the Pacific, is pointing south on another adventure.

It left Sunday for New York, via the Straits of Magellan, on a 19,000-mile voyage expected to require 18 months. Aboard were its owner-master, Dr. E. Allen Petersen, his Japanese wife, Tani, and Wendell Parks of Seattle.

SHERIFF TO SWING AXE ON JAIL STAFF

Wholesale firing of Charles st. jail officers will be recommended to Sheriff Frederick R. Sullivan, it was learned today after State Commissioner of Correction Arthur T. Lyman had conferred for more than an hour with Superior Judge Frederick W. Fosdick.

WINNIE RUTH JUDD

At the conference were John Murphy, purchasing agent for the Department of Correction, and Asst. Dist.-Atty. Frederick T. Doyle.

Taken up at the conference, it is understood, was the question as to whether former City Treasurer Edmund L. Dolan and J. Walter Quinn, as prisoners on contempt of court charges, can be forced to do hard labor.

HAD SPECIAL FAVORS

It is understood also that Lyman was told there is no hard labor at the jail and that whatever duties are assigned the men is up to the sheriff.

It was learned that Lyman informed Judge Fosdick that Dolan and Quinn had been allowed special privileges under resigned Sheriff John F. Dowd; that they slept in the infirmary and that they had a special waiter to serve their meals.

These privileges are understood to have been taken away from the contempt of court prisoners since the incumbency of Sheriff Sullivan.

Asst. Dist.-Atty. Doyle gave it as his opinion that Dolan and Quinn are subject to the rules and regulations of the jail governing other prisoners.

The recommendatnon of wholesale firing of jail officers will be made by Lyman, it is understood.

NEW DEAL ON JOBS

Many of those now employed were placed in the positions by Dowd after they allegedly paid for the jobs.

Ancient Fraud Tried in Hub

The racket men never stop trying.

Once again the moldy "Spanish prisoner" gag has been revived, this time with the "prisoner" in Mexico, but with the same old trunk in the same old North American customs house and filled with the same old phony cash.

Leo D. Sullivan of 52 Chauncy st. is the latest would-be victim selected by the racketeers, who get their names from nobody knows where.

A letter, which Sullivan will turn over to the postal authorities, was received by him from Mexico, stating that the writer was a prisoner in Mexico for bankruptcy and asking financial help in saving "a sum of $285,000 which I have in bank bills inside of a secret place in a trunk that is deposited in a custom house in the United States."

Referring to himself as "I," the writer requests that an answer be sent to "a person of my entire trust" whose name and address are given as Julio Campos, Cuauhtemotzin, 229—Depto 254, Mexico, D. F. Mexico.

'GOVERNMENTAL SERFDOM' FEAR TOLD IN N. H. SURVEY

CONCORD, N. H., Dec. 4—Unless the present trend in her economics is halted, New Hampshire is headed toward governmental serfdom, according to a unique report on the financial condition of the state being studied here today.

The report discloses the seeming paradox of a people growing richer, according to one set of books, and poorer in another set.

Individual savings, it is shown, are being smothered by governmental debt.

Unemployment, the report says, is caused by the very methods taken to cure it.

Fashioned after statements made by large corporations, the report, made by Samuel Crowther, author-journalist of the Commissioner for the Promotion of Wealth and Income of the People of New Hampshire, presents a double-entry bookkeeping picture of the public affairs of the state.

OF NATIONAL IMPORTANCE

It is the first application of big business bookkeeping to public affairs. Crowther pointed out that, while the people of New Hampshire were thrifty during 1936—the year subjected to study—and saved $13,761,000, their savings were outweighed by the net loss of $17,750,000 in the state's institutions of banking and government.

Crowther pointed out that many of the results of his study were of national importance, adding:

"There is no evidence that the people of New Hampshire desire socialization, but it seems evident that, unless the present trend is checked, we shall have an economy depending largely on government . . . in which most certainly only a few will govern and others will be serfs of the state.

"The reply to this trend is not further government aid to business and agriculture, for such aid can only accelerate the socialization pace. The only aid that can check the trend must be in the direction of freeing private enterprise from the burdens which prevent it from functioning at a profit. That is a plain matter of bookkeeping."

Crowther said the double-entry system of bookkeeping applied to the state's problems had made plain the effects of government deficits on the people.

FINDS HIDDEN TAXES

He said it also had disclosed that "hidden taxes" amount to at least 10.8 cents in every dollar spent by consumers and direct taxes to 7.1 cents, a total of 17.9 cents.

The need of examining "the impact of Federal taxes and financing" and of examining the social services also had been disclosed, he said.

"The picture of New Hampshire is, comparatively speaking, far from a dismal one and, if the facts are grasped and considered action is taken on them, it is easy to believe that the scene can be greatly changed for the better," he continued.

"The facts as found go a long way toward showing why standards of living are falling, why unemployment and relief threaten to become problems incapable of solution, and why political blocs tend to form."

URGES MORE FARMING

Crowther said the state was not safe in depending so largely upon industry, reporting that 51.5 per cent of the state's income came from manufacturing. The agriculture of the state, he added, could produce a very much larger quantity of foodstuffs than it now produces.

"Further inquiry into the whole business structure of the state—and this could be done by the businesses themselves—would provide a body of facts out of which the answers to the problems of business might be found. Those answers would, of course, solve the problems of unemployment and relief," he said.

Actor Wooing Daughter of Gov. James?

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 4 (AP)—Dainty Dorothy James had a movie actor as a guest today in Pennsylvania's executive mansion.

The governor's daughter—in her early twenties—told interviewers "I am not engaged."

William Lundigan, who went to Hollywood from a radio announcing job in Syracuse, N. Y., flew in from the West coast over the week-end.

"Bill had a few days' holiday and he came on for a visit," said Miss James. "We met in Syracuse when I did dramatic sketches on the air."

Trio Face Parolee Who Trapped Them

A cop can be wrong, as can a jury, and that's the reason that Harry Kamenides, 23-year-old sleuthing reformatory parolee, of Compton st., South End, went into municipal court today to hear apologies and vindication.

Scheduled for arraignment in the same court were three Cambridge youths whose arrests Kamenides brought about single-handed.

The youth, on parole for the last three years, had been again within the shadow of prison walls until he showed real police detectives a thing or two about their job and brought in the Cambridge trio.

On Sept. 25, Kamenides was arrested on a charge of assault and battery upon Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Mantz of Pinckney st., Beacon Hill. Police charged Kamenides and two other youths had beaten Mantz and knocked his wife to the ground.

Kamenides was arraigned in municipal court and held for the grand jury. Last week, however, the grand jury cleared him.

Believing in the youth's innocence, probation authorities told him they would prevent his return to the reformatory if he would try to find the three men who had committed the assault. Kamenides began his own probe.

Yesterday Kamenides led Detectives Daniel Donovan and Andrew Mellon of the Joy st. station to three homes where three youths were arrested, charged with assault and battery upon the Mantz couple.

The three, all 22, are Salvatore Rainna, John Fraser and Joseph Silvia, all of Cambridge.

According to police, Rainna said he struck and beat Mantz and the other two have stated that while seeking to escape they knocked Mrs. Mantz to the ground.

Probation authorities said Kamenides will be allowed to go free and will not be remanded to the reformatory because of his aid to police.

Windsors Fail To Receive Bid Home for Yule

By MAURY PAUL

Special to the Boston American

NEW YORK, Dec. 3—If you know the Duke and Duchess of Windsor and want to send them Christmas greetings, address them in care of the "Chateau de la Croe, Cap d'Antibes, Alpes Maritimes, France."

For the Windsors will spend Christmas and New Year's in the south of that country that has offered them a haven ever since their marriage.

The Duke of Windsor has been granted "holiday-leave" from his military duties beginning Dec. 15. But he and his duchess will not, as was rumored, go back to England to spend Yuletide with other members of the British royal family.

They're not going back to Albion for the very excellent reason they've not been invited.

It's an open secret that Wallis Warfield Windsor had expected Christmas would bring her the long-hoped-for "bid" to again pass through the portals of Buckingham Palace—portals foreign to her ever since Windsor abdicated.

But no word has come from their Britannic majesties. So the Chateau de la Croe is being put in readiness to receive the master and mistress.

Incidentally, the Christmas cards to be sent out by the Duke and Duchess of Windsor are embossed with the royal arms and are reported to refer to the senders as "their royal highnesses"—which is just a bit inaccurate.

DETECTIVE SILENT ON 'WIRE TAP'

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 4—Atty. Gen. Louis V. Jackvony of Rhode Island was back from New York today with the report that Frank Bielaski, head of the Bielaski Detective Agency, named by Federal officials in the local wiretapping scandal, had refused all information concerning his clients.

Lee E. Barton, an employe of Bielaski, is being sought on a warrant charging wiretapping. He is specifically accused of tapping the lines of Mayor Thomas P. McCoy, of Pawtucket, a Democrat.

'Baby-Face' Four Wait Grand Jury Action Here in 5-and-10 Murders

It was the day of reckoning today for four baby-faced youngsters, one of them a 17-year-old girl, whose primrose path to fun and romance was cut short, allegedly, by "five and ten cent" murders.

The carefree young quartet were accused of Quincy and Stoughton murders and today Dist. Atty. Edmund R. Dewing called the Norfolk County grand jury in seeking indictments of all on first degree murder charges.

The girl was blonde Helen Hayes, of Ogunquit, Me., the companion of

HELEN HAYES

Harrison Howes, 18, of New Bedford, who the state charges committed murder for 48 cents to continue a summertime romance.

Simon Danilovitch, 55, a Stoughton dump picker, was the victim. He was shot in the back after being robbed of his few pennies. The young girl left her home in Maine after a vacation romance with Howes, who spent the summer working in an Ogunquit restaurant.

Two 16-year-old Quincy pals were the other half of the quartet against which murder indictments were sought.

They were Arthur S. Cray, Jr., of Morgan rd., and Irwin R. Nelson, Jr., of Granite st., who allegedly found murder as the climax of a series of eight robberies in which the total loot was but 45 cents.

The victim was Carl Emil Carlson, 42, World War veteran and Quincy City Hospital night watchman, who chose to give battle to the young bandits instead of turning over his cash.

Cahill Greets Dutch Envoy

As governor for a day, Lieut. Gov. Horace T. Cahill today extended a welcome to Dr. Alexander Loudon, minister to the United States from Holland, and Mrs. Loudon.

The visiting couple also paid a call on Mayor Tobin.

R. I. MOTHER OF 5 IS FIRST U. S. STAMP FOOD BUYER

PROVIDENCE, Dec. 4—A widow, mother of five children, was the first customer here today when the Federal Surplus Commodity Corporation opened its first New England store for sale of food stamps.

As the doors to the West Exchange st. warehouse offices opened, Mrs. Irene Lester of Oxford st. was first in line. She purchased $8 worth of the orange stamps which entitled her to an additional $4 worth of blue stamps, all good at any grocery store for purchases of home supplies.

By noon, it was estimated that 500 welfare recipients had purchased stamps representing total sales of approximately $5000.

Forty WPA white collar workers have been hired as food stamp clerks.

A big rush on the stamp store is expected Thursday when Works Progress Administration employes and local welfare recipients get their checks.

By then Robert N. Foote, local representative of the F. S. C. C., will have his office staff working smoothly and expects to handle the crowds with dispatch.

DEALERS EYE SYSTEM

The system he is employing calls for registration of each prospective stamp purchaser upon arrival at the office.

The purchaser must buy at least $1 worth of stamps for each member of his or her family. A staff of clerks was completing arrangements today for swift handling of sales in order that stamp-buyers may avoid delay.

Observers from wholesale and retail food dealers throughout New England were on hand today to watch the system inaugurated, Boston, Springfield, Worcester and other large New England cities are studying the plan with a view to adopting the federal scheme.

On hand and representing several large chain stores in Massachusetts was Harold Woodward, secretary of the Massachusetts Retail Groceries and Provision Dealers Assn.

Albert H. Bailey, Jr., chairman of the Rhode Island Food Industries Committee, said today

"I estimate an increase in the local food business of between three-quarters and a million dollars a year by using this plan.

INAUGURATED IN N. Y.

"We have 13,000 families on relief, or 16 per cent of the population. I expect that by the first of the year we shall have 60 to 75 per cent of these people using the plan."

This is the 14th city in the country which has adopted the plan since its inauguration at Rochester, N. Y. It has proved a tremendous success in such places as Rochester, Minneapolis, Seattle, Wash., and other municipalities.

Under the plan Providence residents receiving any form of public assistance, including WPA employes, may purchase orange stamps to be used instead of cash in buying food. With each dollar's worth of orange stamps they will be given free 50 cents worth of blue stamps.

Orange stamps may be used to purchase any foodstuffs at stores where the relief recipient now pays cash and in addition blue stamps will be accepted for a specified list of surplus commodities defined by the Secretary of Agriculture.

The present list of surplus commodities includes butter, pork lard, corn meal, shell eggs, dried prunes, raisins, fresh apples and pears, onions, dried edible beans, wheat and whole wheat flour.

REDEEMED IN FULL

Food dealers who accept the orange and blue stamps in trade may have them redeemed at face value through banks or the Federal audit office, or they may give them to wholesalers in payment for goods.

Eligible in Providence are 6000 families on WPA, 4000 families on state unemployment relief and 3000 families in the social security categories. These include old-age assistance, the blind and dependent children.

Stamps may not be used for the purchase of beer, wine, liquor or tobacco in any form, nor can they be used for the purchase of food usually eaten at stores.

FIRST New England test of the federal and state food stamp plan, in which relief recipients get $1.50 worth of commodities for $1 stamp, was being made today in Providence. Here pretty clerk turns out the new stamps.

HUNT 12 LOST IN 2 BOATS

Hampered by rough seas, one small fleet of Coast Guard boats searched today for a scallop dragger, missing off the Maine coast with a crew of nine, and other Coast Guards sought a Gloucester fishing launch feared in trouble near Cape Cod.

Three men in the Gloucester vessel are believed at the mercy of the sea, with fuel gone and food supplies low.

The trio, Manuel Silva of Taylor st., Gloucester, and Herbert Morse and Leon Wallace, both of Rockport, left early Saturday for a day's mackerel netting near the Highlands, at the tip of Cape Cod.

Concern grew for their safety when they failed to appear Sunday. As darkness fell, coast guards of the Highland, Wood End and Race Point stations near Provincetown began a search which lasted through the night and was continued today, but thus far without success.

The cutter General Greene was ordered to search 100 miles southwest of Rockland, Me., for the 43-ton dragger Madeline and Flora, five days overdue.

Capt. Frank Manning, son-in-law of Capt. George Carver, owner of the Madeline and Flora, was in charge of the vessel.

Other crew members included Roger Smith, Herman Drake, Robert St. Clair, Leroy Kirk, Howard Anderson, Lowell Day, Ray Simmons and Edward Keiley.

At Salem air base, a Coast Guard seaplane was made ready to aid in the two searches as soon as the strong winds permit.

Onset Slayer Sent to Asylum

BROCKTON, Dec. 4 (AP)—Walter L. Teachman, 17, of Onset, charged with the murder of Louis C. Williams, 46, also of Onset, over an alleged $10 debt, was committed to Bridgewater State Hospital for the criminally insane today.

Teachman did not appear in court, having been sent to the Bridgewater institution Oct. 13 for observation.

A State psychiatrist declared he was insane and Superior Court Judge Paul G. Kirk imposed sentence after filing the murder charge, pending possile restoration of the youth's sanity.

Police had contended Teachman went to Williams' home Sept. 28, demanded $10 which he said Williams owed him for a painting job and then killed him with a shotgun.

M. I. T. Students Begin Flying Lessons

Six Massachusetts Institute of Technology students reported today at the Inter-City Airlines hangar, East Boston airport, for their first flying instruction under the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

They are part of a group of 30 students who will be taught flying here during the next several months. A group of pilots headed by Windsor Harlow will do the instructing.

Wage Earner's Wife Eligible for Security

(Every person who has a Social Security account card has an interest in the new feature of Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance which go into effect Jan. 1, 1940. For the benefit of the readers of the Boston Evening American the Boston office of the Social Security Board has supplied six brief articles each explaining one point of the new provisions. Following is the last of this series.)

A man who has worked in a factory, a store, or in some other industrial or business establishment during the past two or three years, and has qualified for old-age insurance benefits after age 65, may now file claim for benefits.

After Jan. 1, 1940, when monthly benefits begin, the wife of an annuitant may also receive monthly payments if she is 65 years old.

Monthly payments to the aged wife of an annuitant will be one-half of his monthly benefit.

For example: Mr. Brown, now 65 years old, who has been employed in a mill for some time decides that he will quit work in the mill next year and apply for his old-age insurance benefits.

His wife is a little more than 62 years old, which means that she must wait about three years before she can receive benefits. If the husband's benefit amounts to $30 a month, the wife will receive $15 per month after she reaches 65.

In households where the wife as well as the husband is an insured wage earner, she will receive, when she reaches 65, her own old-age insurance payment, instead of the supplementary benefit from her husband's wages.

For instance, suppose Mrs. Brown has had a job in covered employment. She reaches age 65, files a claim for old-age insurance, and it is found that he own monthly benefit will be $10 per month.

In addition to her own check for $10, she will receive a supplementary benefit of $5 per month in connection with Mr. Brown's annuity payments.

(For further information call or write the Social Security Board office in Boston or your district.)

'STRAIGHT FROM HIPS,' 1940 DANCE STYLE

"Straight from the hip!"

That is the admonition on how to dance the 1940 style that several hundred co-eds at Boston University's Sargent College of Physical Education are learning this year in their study of the modern dance.

"There are no more awkward bumps and angles in the silhouettes of a couple dancing in the modern manner," Miss Anne A. Cameron, assistant professor of physical education and dance instructor, warns the students.

"Men no longer dance bent over backwards and women dented in the middle. 1940-style dancing calls for straight posture and bodies rather close together."

"Never drag on the man's shoulder," is another of Professor Cameron's "dont's" in demonstrating the technique of modern dancing. She stresses the need for more ballroom dancing to avoid awkwardness and a wallflower attitude.

"A gentleman should never push a lady around and a lady should never have to be pushed," says the dancing teacher.

Hints for more graceful and less "jitterbuggy" dancing are given the Sargent girls who study modern dancing as part of their cirricular work in physical education. Some of these suggestions are:

Always be at ease; hold your head up; after the dance sit down with one foot under the chair so that sitting and standing are graceful movements, not a series of jolts; never walk across a ball room floor. Always walk around it.

8 Mass. Cities Elect Mayors Tomorrow

High-lighted by another mayoralty bid by Andrew J. "Bossy" Gillis, one-time "bad boy mayor" of Newburyport, voters will go to the polls tomorrow to elect mayors in eight cities and minor officers in two others.

Mayoralty contests are scheduled in Brockton, Chicopee, Gloucester, Holyoke, Northampton, Salem, Taunton and Newburyport.

The Quincy election will be confined to choosing six ward councillors and two members of the school committee. The Haverhill election will be to fill similar posts.

Newburyport

Ex-Mayor Gillis is a candidate against Mayor James F. Carens, World War veteran, who based his re-election plea on a record of municipal economy and "no high jinks."

"Bossy," a Republican, lost out in an attempted coup to win the endorsement of Gov. Saltonstall, thus making the election a last-ditch party fight. The Governor said he was unable to take any part in purely local contests.

Brockton

Mayor Fred A. Rowe is seeking re-election with former Mayor Lawrence E. Crowley as an opponent. Seats also are to be filled in the city council and the school committee.

Gloucester

Mayor Sylvester F. Whalen is opposed by John R. Cahill, Jr. The board of aldermen and school committee contests are featured by the presence of ex-Mayor George H. Newell, 85, who is seeking an audermanic post.

Salem

Mayor Edward A. Coffey is unopposed for re-eelection, with contests only for the city council and school committee positions.

Taunton

Mayor Arthur E. Poole has as his opponent City Auditor John E. Fitzgerald, whom Poole led in the primaries by the slender margin of 21 votes. There are also places to be filled on the school committee.

Chicopee

Mayor Anthony J. Stonia is seeking his fourth term with State Rep. Leo J. Senecal and Ralph B. Rich as opponents. Seven ward aldermen and two school committee members also will be chosen.

Holyoke

Five persons seek the job of Mayor William P. Yoerg, who declined to seek re-election. They are ex-Mayor Henry J. Toepfert, Joseph E. Lucey, Alderman Roland Peltier, Rep. Lawrence W. Law and Henry J. Arel.

Northampton

Kenneth H. Hemenway, Republican, and Charles J. O'Connor, Democrat, are the mayoralty candidates. Mayor William H. Feiker, 70, was eliminated in the primaries but has taken an active part in the election, maintaining neither has clearly outlined their policies. There are also contests for the board of aldermen, city council and school committee.

Four Maine Cities Go To Polls Today

PORTLAND, Me., Dec. 4—Voters in Portland, South Portland, Bangor and Rockland went to the polls today to choose municipal officers.

The only Maine mayoralty contest is in Rockland, where Mayor Edward R. Veazie is opposed by Charles M. Richardson. City councilors and school committeemen are to be elected in all four cities.

CCC Youth Rallies After Ledge Plunge

BERLIN, N. H., Dec. 4—The condition of Quito Di Pompo, 19, North Conway C. C. C. worker injured seriously when he plunged over a cliff 30 feet to a ledge on Wildcat Mountain, was reported improved today.

Di Pompo is in St. Louis Hospital here after a dramatic rescue by 20 C. C. C. members. He suffered a fractured skull and multiple cuts and bruises. While fighting a fire at an elevation of 3800 feet Di Pompo lost his footing and fell headlong.

Reds Seize Islands, Say 'English' Routed

MOSCOW, Dec. 4 (AP)—Russia reported today her army was advancing both in the north and south against the Finns, and that her navy was making sweeping attacks in the Baltic and had captured a group of strategic Finnish islands in the Gulf of Finland.

Simultaneously the press denied she intended to convert Finland into a dependent country and attacked "the democracies," naming Great Britain, France and the United States.

Pravda, Communist party organ, said editorially the mutual assistance treaty signed Saturday between Russia and a Comunist-led "people's" regime "eliminates forever the causes of mutual distrust and lays the foundation for a firm and indestructible friendship."

It added:

"It would be unnecessary to prove that none of the 'democratic' powers, let us say Britain, France or the United States, had ever agreed to sign a similar pact with such a small and weak country as Finland.

"Any of the 'democratic' countries would have preferred to use their strong armies for occupation of Finnish territory and for the conversion of Finland into a dependent country.

"The Soviet Union only used its military power not for the occupation and enslavery of Finland but for strengthening the independence of Finland."

ROUTED "THE ENGLISH"

On the conflict itself, the "battlefront" correspondent of the government newspaper Izvestia reported:

"The glorious sailors and artillerists have fulfilled their duty, having not let a single enemy bullet fall upon holy Soviet land or on the streets of Leningrad."

A Pravda dispatch indicated a heavy battle near Kronstadt, Russian naval base, but said that Soviet ships, airplanes and the army "routed the Finns and the English who dared to attack our shores."

There was no elaboration of the allegation that "the English" took part.

The Soviet navy's advances in the Gulf of Finland were reported in an official communique.

Units of the Baltic fleet, after "successful battles," captured the Gulf of Finland islands of Suursaari (Hogland), Seiskari, Lavensaari and Tytaersaari, according to a communique from the staff of the Leningard military area covering yesterday's operations.

The communique used the phrase "small and big" in listing Tytaersaari, which would indicate a smaller island nearby bearing the name Pien-Tytaersaari also was occupied.

The island group lies along Russia's line of communication through the Gulf of Finland into the Baltic, Seiskari being 45 miles west of the Soviet island naval base Kronstadt.

The Leningrad staff communique also reported continued advances into Finland, along her middle eastern border, and in the Karelian Isthmus north of Leningrad—advances to points 18 to 28 miles within Finland.

Women Fly Red Bombing Planes

HELSINKI, Dec. 4 (INS)—Tales of heroism by Finnish troops and fliers against terrific odds began to flitter into Helsinki from the front today coincident with disclosure that Russian women have participated in the bombing raids on Finnish cities.

Investigation disclosed that a woman was a member of the crew of one Soviet bombing plan shot down by Finnish anti-aircraft batteries at an undisclosed spot.

85 Dead, 181 Injured In Finland Bombings

HELSINKI, Dec. 4 (AP)—Total civilian casualties in the recent air raids by Soviet fliers were 85 dead and 181 wounded, 65 being killed in Helsinki alone, Finnish authorities announced today.

Sixteen buildings were destroyed by bombs, 11 by fire and 233 others damaged.

Swedish, British Ships Sunk by Mines

LONDON, Dec. 4 (INS)—Two more ships, the 2159-ton Swedish collier Rudolph and the 3829-ton British freighter Eskdene, were mined in British waters today.

The crew of the Eskdene, 29 men, was landed at a Scottish port after the vessel sank, but only eight of the crew of the Rudolph were picked up by a trawler. The other 11 are feared lost.

RED GRAB PUTS HITLER IN TRAP

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

Russia's method of procedure in smashing Finland leaves no doubt that this conquest does indeed represent a resumption of the Bolshevist effort—temporarily shelved by Stalin 15 years ago—to Sovietize all Europe by taking advantage of the disorganization caused by the European war.

The conflict between the Allies and Germany has been overshadowed by the Russian drive. Europe again is beset by the fears which existed in the early days of Communism when the Comintern, or International, was devoting its energies to starting a "world revolution," and producing such bloody upheavals as the Bela Kun regime in Hungary.

Confirmation of the nature of the Russian program came in the establishment of the Red revolutionary government on Finnish territory, barely over the border from Soviet Russia. This "government" was promptly recognized by Moscow, of course, and issued the customary manifesto.

"LIQUIDATION" OF RICH

The proclamation provided for the usual confiscation of lands and their redistribution among the peasants. About the only thing it didn't mention was the "liquidation" of the aristocracy and landlords which is part of the formula for the establishment of a Soviet government, as was demonstrated again when Russia annexed eastern Poland.

All Europe is anxiously trying to guess what the Muscovites' next move will be if and when they have finished putting Finland through the mangle.

The other three Scandinavian states—Norway, Sweden and Denmark—are apprehensive.

Pursuant to its plans for strengthening its strategic position in northern Europe, Russia is supposed to have an eye on Norwegian ports.

SWEDEN'S IRON NEXT

Sweden's iron mines might prove a mighty magnet. In any event, apart from any fear of armed aggression, the Scandinavian states live in terror of the advancing Red wave. The trio undoubtedly would have gone to the aid of Finland had it been at all feasible.

Equally fearful are the Balkans, especially Rumania with its rich oil wells and that big Bessarabian territory which she took from Russia after the World War. The Soviet Union has given every indication of a desire to extend its domination over the Balkan peninsula into Turkey.

Italy is utterly hostile to a move into territory which Mussolini regards as his preserve, and the Fascist leader has been doing his utmost to form a Balkan bloc against either Russian or German advances. So tense is the situation that southeastern Europe is an open powder-keg.

HITLER'S FOLLY DOOMS HIM

In short the Communist approach is being viewed with fear and hostile alertness by virtually every country of Europe. There are the makings of a fine, general war ready for the match.

The German position isn't clear to the outside world, and observers generally believe it is a matter of deep concern to Hitler himself. Few doubt that the Nazi chieftain's acquiescence in Stalin's expansion is given with the utmost reluctance, for it slashes Nazidom's ambitions in the Baltic region to the bone.

However, there seems to be little Hitler can do about it at the moment because of the war. He has made what looks to many like a bad bargain with Stalin in his efforts to circumvent the Allies, but there is no way he can escape.

Indeed, there is always the possibility that he may be forced into even greater co-operation with the Russians—perhaps in expansion into the Balkans—in order to strengthen his hand for the immediate requirements of war against England and France.

The allied inauguration of their complete blockade against Germany today is calculated to make the Reich's conduct of war increasingly difficult.

All Faiths Join Peace Prayers by Cardinal

Catholics, Protestants and Jews prayed today for world peace following an appeal by William Cardinal O'Connell, who on Friday will celebrate his 80th birthday anniversary.

Those of all faiths joined in mass prayer.

To more than 1,000,000 Catholics in 375 churches of the archdiocese, prayers were asked by the Cardinal in a special Sunday message.

Cardinal O'Connell presided at a solemn high mass at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross at 10 o'clock.

PRAYERS ASKED

In his "peace pastoral" Cardinal O'Connell called for the prayers of all the faithful in a plea to God that the war-making heads of nations turn from the path of hate and violence to a course of arbitration and peace.

Reviewing conditions existing throughout the world in the present militaristic era, Cardinal O'Connell declared:

"Thoughtful men and women need not be told that the present unhappy state of the world is due to the denial of God and the utter disregard for the Christian principles of justice, truth and charity.

"All over Europe false philosophers and prophets of evil seeking to destroy the unity of the human race are indoctrinating the minds and hearts of men with the error of racism. Each race, they say, is entire and complete and self-sufficient; and to cover their falsity they mask their brutal effort with the glorified title of ideology.

TURN FROM HATE

"What can we do? Let us first, above all, turn to God of love and pray for the return of peace and the end of turmoil. Prepare yourself well during this sacred season by prayer and fasting, by penance and sacrifice, for the coming of Christ on Christmas morn.

"Ask the Divine Child to enlighten the minds and inflame the hearts of rulers so that the scales of pride and vanity may fall from their eyes and, seeing clearly the utter desolation toward which they are driving the world, they may turn from the paths of hate which lead to national ruin to the kindly paths of peace which lead to contentment and happiness."

The agreement, signing of which is expected in the near future, most likely will be adapted to the economic mobilization now going on in Japan, the newspaper stated.

REDS BLAST WAY INTO ARCTIC PORT

Still otherr reports said several hundred Russian soldiers were drowned when ice broke under them as Soviet shock troops and artillery units advanced over frozen marshes of Lake Lagoda.

Owing to a heavy snowstorm, there was no Russian air attacks upon Helsinki or other sections of southern Finland up until noon Finnish time.

Most residents of the city had been evacuated, but fears were expressed that many of the refugees might freeze to death on the icy roads leading from the city.

(A Reuter dispatch from Amsterdam said it was reported picked companies of Finnish ski troops were attacking Russians along the Karelin and eastern borders, but that the heavy snow prevented large-scale action.

(According to the London Daily Telegraph, Russian aircraft dropped leaflets on Helsinki warning that 500 Soviet bombers would attack the city today. A Stockholm report said fears were expressed gas bombs might be used in the next raid on the capital.

(This fear was said to have resulted from Moscow charges that Finnish troops had fought the Russians with poison gas. These charges were denied.)

WOULD WELCOME PARLEY

Eighteen more Soviet tanks were destroyed and Finland's defenders threw back repeated Russian attacks against their eastern lines reaching from the Arctic to the Karelina Isthmus.

It was announced the Ryti government sent to Moscow, through the Swedish minister, an offer to negotiate a settlement which would respect Finland's sovereign interests.

The communique said "Moscow was approached with an inquiry as to whether the Soviet government was prepared to open negotiations for a peaceful settlement.

"No reply so far has been received."

HAS WORLD'S SYMPATHY

In addition, Foreign Minister V. A. Tanner asserted Finland would never give way to "Russian terror" and added that Finland would have "effective help" as well as sympathy of the rest of the world.

Decision to seek a settlement with Moscow coincided with a Finnish appeal to the League of Nations for action to halt the Red invasion. This did not mean surrender by Finland, an announcement stated, but merely demonstrated Finnish willingness to enter negotiations.

Finnish combat planes and anti-aircraft guns accounted for the Russian squadron of 12 planes when the latter attempted to bomb a power station at Imatra northwest of the Karelian Isthmus. Eleven planes were shot down in flames and the twelfth was forced to land and its crew was captured.

'300 DEAD, 700 SEIZED'

The company of Russian parachutists was disarmed and taken prisoners after alighting at Villmannastrand, 42 miles northwest of the southeastern port of Viborg.

Finnish advices also said four Soviet infantry companies were "destroyed" near Metsapirta north of Lake Lagoda, with 300 Red army men killed and 700 captured.

Finland's high command, in a special radio broadcast, denied a Moscow allegation that Finnish forces had used poison gas. The high command invited a neutral commission to investigate.

An official communique said 44 Soviet tanks were known to have been destroyed and 24 Soviet planes shot down since beginning of the war, while only two Finnish planes were lost.

SANTA IS HOST—Aboard an American Airlines' plane at East Boston airport, Natalie Nee of Brookline prepares to take off with Kris Kringle as a guest of C. F. Hovey Co. The plane party, sponsored by the department store, attracted many youngsters . . . and grown-ups too.

League to Study Finland Appeal

GENEVA, Dec. 4—Responding to a formal appeal from Finland for collective action to halt the Soviet invasion, plans were set in motion today for a meeting of the League of Nations council on Saturday, Dec. 9.

Although little was expected to materialize from the council session, diplomatic circles strongly intimated that the Soviet Union probably would follow Japan, Germany and Italy out of the League if the council takes action on the Finnish appeal.

EEE-EE-EEE—crump! Eee-ee-EEE—CRU-UMP! Those last two shell bursts were close. Closest in an hour.

But 16-year-old Private First Class Albert E. Scott merely hunched a muddy khaki shoulder and flattened himself a little more snugly against the sidewall of his ditch.

It was a good ditch and well chosen. The angle at which it extended along the side of the road nearest the woods afforded Scotty protection against the Boche high explosive blindly hammering the empty field behind and to the left of him.

And his automatic rifle—a French chaut-chaut gun poked cautiously out of the ditch in front of him and above the level of his shoulders commanded a long open vista leading straight and far into an otherwise heavy cover of hardwood trees and thickets.

Checkered with light and shadow where the blazing July sunshine slanted down into them, the woods looked cool and quiet and peaceful.

They were actually a-crawl with Heinies, as Scotty had reason to know. It was hard to believe, though, that death was prowling so soft and summery a landscape.

This rolling farm and vineyard country just northwest of Chateau Thierry had never been ripped and blasted and pounded into desolation by such years of intensive shellfire as had left the area from Soissons and the Chemin des Dames to Verdun a weird and ghastly charnel ground, scarred by old trenches, criss-crossed by rusting wire and reeking with corruption.

Half dozing in his ditch, with the sun warm on his back, Scotty was pleasantly conscious of the scarlet flame of the poppies against the yellow-green of the wheat field where the Boche 77's had been bursting harmlessly just now.

Against the distant horizon, to the north and east he could see German observation balloons, oddly and grotesquely shaped, like sausages with fins.

BEHIND him and slightly nearer was a similar line of French balloons spaced like the Boche ones a few miles apart and stretching in the same way to the far horizon.

It was queer to see those vigilant sky monsters, unarmed and inoffensive in themselves, yet staring, staring, staring, ready to unleash hidden batteries at a telephoned word or send machine gun platoons or infantry with bayoneted rifles into sudden, deadly action.

Scotty guessed there must be a Heinie balloon up forward somewhere, watching the woods in front of him. But he couldn't see it—and it couldn't see him!

That was why the shellfire hereabouts had been so desultory, just occasional "bouquets" of four 77's each, as a German gun crew somewhere fired dutifully by the map.

Things were different, however, further into the woods to Scotty's right and up the open slope beyond. Heavy columns of smoke were mushrooming there. And the faint rat-tat-tat-tat of machine gun fire—at first exactly like the noise Scotty and other Brookline kids used to make running sticks along a picket fence—was swelling fast into a steady roar.

Above the distant mushroom bursts of high explosive, there were vicious black puffs now, as German shrapnel lashed down at French and American infantry still invisible from where Scotty crouched.

The outfit was catching hell, Scotty guessed. A tough, mean spot this Trugny woods was, if he had ever seen one.

It didn't look so tough, coming in. But it was lousy with machine guns and snipers. And the Heinies were in a vicious mood, bent on making the advancing Yanks pay plenty for every inch of ground yielded as this Chateau Thierry salient was pinched out.

There'd be a lot of the boys who wouldn't be in line at mess call when and if the division ever got back to rest quarters, Scotty estimated grimly.

BUT as far as that went, there'd be some Heinies, too, with no further interest in beer and liverwurst. Scotty guessed his chaut-chaut gun had already permanently spoiled the appetites of at least three or four of the Krauts.

The lieutenant of H company — that was Scotty's company — had said:

"They're in the woods there to your left. There was a whole column of squads of them ducked off the road when they saw us coming.

"Now we're going into action over ahead and to the right. You gotta keep that crew off our flank.

"It's a tough assignment, kid, but you gotta do the best you can. They'll have to cross that open space square in front of your gun. Just don't let 'em. That's all."

Well, thus far, Scotty hadn't let 'em.

First moving bit of gray he'd seen like a Heinie uniform had been a scampering squirrel, not a man. But the stuttering roar of the chaut-chaut had lashed down between the trees and ripped the tiny animal to bloody fragments.

One of the best automatic riflemen in the whole 101st infantry, they called Scotty.

And his second burst of chaut-chaut fire today had not been wasted on a squirrel. Instead it had broken up a quick German dash across the clearing.

One by one, the first half dozen of the straggling figures in the coal scuttle helmets had sagged down.

Two had never moved again. A third had kicked and screamed, then lain silent, too. The others had crawled or been assisted back to the cover they had started from.

Scotty thought for a while they would probably rush him. There were plenty back in the woods who hadn't risked exposing themselves yet.

But the minutes passed, and nothing happened. The Heinies thought a whole machine gun squad was on watch at that clearing, Scotty guessed.

He relaxed again briefly, let the sun bake into his aching bones and noticed a pair of yellow and white butterflies hovering over a scrap of refuse, just in front of his gun.

THEY didn't care whether there was a war on or not, those little fellows. They had even less worries than Scotty himself used to have, a scant year and a half ago, when he was selling papers at Coolidge corner, Brookline, and yelling out headlines like "U-Boat Sinks the Lusitania" and "President Wilson Warns German Government."

The war in Europe had seemed a long way off in those days. And Scotty's idea of what a war was like had been a pleasantly vague imaginative picture of bands playing at railroad stations and soldiers kissing pretty girls goodby and thin blue lines of heroes charging across green fields with bayonets glittering and battleflags flying and bugles sounding the attack.

He hadn't known anything then about real war, about marching nights, dead on your feet; about fighting days, sometimes in stinking trenches, that protected you, other times in shallow foxholes that didn't; about guys getting it in the belly and running around yelling to you for God's sake to put a bullet through their heads and stop their suffering; about other guys with a lungful of gas coughing and coughing and coughing until all you could hear was a gasping wheeze and a moan.

He hadn't known anything about going hungry until you'd creep up behind a guy and slug him for a hunk of hard Frog bread or a rind of cold bacon.

Nor about scratching cooties until your chest and thighs were dripping blood. Or about trying to sleep in deep dugouts with the smell of death in them and the rats running over your face and a little shovel by your head so you could dig yourself out—maybe—through 20 solid feet of clay if a Heinie shell happened to land at the entrance.

No, Scotty hadn't known much of anything about war, back a year and a half ago in Brookline.

All he had worried about was getting into a fighting outfit, once the chip had finally been knocked off Uncle Sam's patient shoulder.

Only 15 years old then, Scotty had been. He had weighed a scant 126 pounds and had stood five feet six inches with an extra rubber lift on his heels.

THE kids around the corner in Brookline had said the Canadians and the British were hard up for men. They'd take anybody with two arms and legs — and ask no questions, either it was rumored.

So Scotty had tried to enlist in a kiltie regiment. Only the recruiting sergeant had just patted him on the shoulder and had told him the King wasn't robbing the cradle yet.

Then the U. S. navy and the U. S. navy reserves. The first was "full up," they told Scotty. And the second said he'd have to have consent of one parent in writing.

That was out, so Scotty had tried the U. S. army recruiting station on the Common. He had lied about his age, of course. And he had passed the weight test by a narrow, four-pound margin.

But the army doctors had found him fit and sound, keen of eye and ear and well-muscled for his size.

Almost before he could realize it, Scotty had raised his right hand and had said "I do."

And when he had gone home to Freeman st., Brookline, to get his toilet articles and break the news to his mother, Mrs. Ethel Scott, he had been whistling "You're In the Army Now."

A long, long time ago, that seemed. And now here Scotty was, his chaut-chaut gun trained on a Boche-infested corner of Trugny woods, his belly more than usually empty and aching, and his bones weary like an old man's from too much marching and too little sleep in this attack that had started July 18, 1918, in the fog before dawn, and was still going strong today, the 23d, the Heinies getting tougher and tougher, the chow scarcer and the company casualty list longer.

Further down the ditch to his right, there were more guys of the outfit, Scotty knew. But he couldn't see them. He was alone here. Alone with his job of keeping the Heinies in the woods from crossing the clearing to catch the advancing Yank wave on the flank.

Scotty tested the semi-circular clip in his chaut-chaut gun to be sure it was clear. He laid out other clips, handy to his reach.

Just in time, too. For there was movement down the clearing.

Coming strong the Krauts were, this time. Bent on getting out of what they thought was a trap.

SCOTTY lined his sights on the first squad and let loose. Then on the second. Then on the third.

A lot of the Heinies were down. But the rest were still coming. Another clip. And another. The gun was getting hot.

"Hotter where the Heinies are," Scotty told himself reassuringly.

Another clip! And another!

Nobody had got across the clearing yet. The guys in the coal scuttle helmets seemed at last to have a bellyful.

Scotty wiped the sweat from his face and was surprised to see his hand all bloody. There'd been some Heinie snipers trying to pick him off, he knew. He guessed one of their rifle bullets must have splintered a fragment of stone against his cheek.

He put another clip in his gun and leaned closer again to the wall of the ditch.

There was a sudden tug at his shoulder. Then a slightly burning sensation.

That bullet had been close!

But now there was movement once more in the clearing. Scotty levelled his sights. If they rushed him this time, perhaps they'd get him. But he's get a lot of them first.

Instead of a rush, however, there came a sudden hail from the woods.

"Hold your fire, Buddy. We're Americans."

Incredulous, but joyfully relieved, Scotty stood up straight, his head well above his gun, to take a good look at these friendly newcomers.

This was the chance a German sharpshooter in a treetop had been waiting for. His first shot hit Scotty square between the eyes. His second tore through the young American gunner's chest, as the boy's body slumped back.

It was too late now, however, for the German flanking party to operate effectively. Scotty's outfit was already on its way in this direction to clean out and mop up what parts of Trugny wood Americans hadn't yet occupied.

They found Scotty's body, huddled over his gun. And they found

PATHOS IN PLEAS BY MOTHERS

Many letters written by applicants for membership in the National Legion of Mothers of America, which seeks to keep the United States out of Europe's diplomatic and economic war, are classics in brevity and appeal.

The labored handwriting, too, and the vast concern and the suffering back of the simple statement that one, two and often three sons were lost in the World War, with other sons now old enough for military service, add to the pathos of the mail daily pouring into the headquarters of the New England Chapter, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

Mrs. G. T. Morrissey, 5 Delle ave., Roxbury, today writes:

"I have two sons old enough to go. I don't want them to leave the land of their birth. Lost their father in the World War. One of my boys is already in urgent marine service. Helped to bring home Americans from Ireland recently."

Mrs. Emma Voulet of 42 Dana st., Somerville, writes:

"I am the mother of a disabled World War veteran now in hospital in Wisconsin. Am signing pledges with two sisters and friends to save other American boys."

Mrs. Albert T. Nordbloom, 29 Colburn st., Dedham, who was Waltham's first "War Baby," and who now has a little son of her own, today joined the Legion of Mothers.

"I strongly believe in keeping America out of war," writes Mrs. Nordbloom. "I happen to be Waltham's first 'War Baby,' born the day my father left Canada for France. My mother had three sons, aged six, nine and 12, when my father enlisted here in Boston to serve with the Canadian forces. He did not have his final American citizen papers at that time, so was not an American citizen.

"My mother was one of the bravest women I ever knew. She worked day and night to keep her little family together, and, with my three brothers who were later entertainers, helped to raise money for the Red Cross and for funds for soldiers.

"My mother made her home the headquarters for collection of peach stones which the government harvested for use in making gas masks.

"Two of my brothers are now married and have children. I am married and have a small son. I would not like to see my brothers' families suffer as mother did, if they had to go, or my husband either.

"When the 'flu' was raging in 1918, my mother and brothers contracted it, and, although I was too young to know, I heard about what a scare it gave and what havoc it caused. Conditions were terrible at that time. My second oldest brother was left with a weak heart which later caused his death.

"I say let us stay home in America. We—my mother and brothers and I are all American citizens now and all patriotic enough to do our part if the United States has to go. But let's hope and pray we never will.

The slogans of the Legion of Mothers are:

1—To oppose the sending of American troops to fight on foreign soil.

2—To support a program of adequate national defense.

3—To combat all "isms" whose object is the destruction of the American form of government.

WE Compared OUR OWN $3.50 SHIRTS WITH SHIRTS FROM 9 OTHER LARGE CITIES...

Last May we had a sale of similar shirts that was so outstanding that many people were disappointed. These shirts are duplicates in every respect of those shirts. Then we bought, for purposes of comparison, $3.50 white shirts in 9 large cities from coast to coast—bought shirts in Boston—two in New York—more in Baltimore—another in Miami—and still others in Pittsburgh, Detroit, Chicago and even as far away as Minneapolis and Los Angeles . . . plus nationally advertised $3.50 shirts that are sold in nearly every city in the country. We tested them, labels unseen, mauled them, pulled them, tore them—counted stitches—tested buttons—checked and rechecked them. The results of the comparison? In the words of the chemist, "It can be stated briefly that the Filene shirt is as good or better than all shirts employed in this test." For graphic proof of the painstaking comparisons we made, see the mutilated shirts in our Men's Store windows.

SCOTTY WORLD WAR HERO

30 dead Germans in the gun's path, down the clearing.

On his way to the Land Where Good Soldiers Go after they die, Scotty had had a general's escort of enemy shades.

All that was mortal of the boy hero who once sold newspapers on Coolidge corner his sorrowing comrades buried in a little military cemetery near Chateau Thierry. Near the slow flowing Marne that had been red with brave men's blood as often all back through the centuries.

On the 25th of July, two days after Scotty's death, the Yankee division was relieved in the Chateau Thierry sector. It won new honors later at St. Mihiel and Verdun, but Scotty wasn't forgotten.

Cited in 26th Division orders for "extraordinary heroism and fine soldierly conduct," he was eventually awarded a posthumous Distinguished Service Cross.

One of the most impressive public ceremonies in Brookline's history marked the day his body was brought home from France to lie in state in the town hall and later be buried in St. Joseph's cemetery.

A bronze Albert E. Scott memorial tablet bought from funds raised by Greater Boston newsboys was placed in Brookline town hall and appropriately dedicated.

Among the speakers were Governor Channing H. Cox, Congressman Peter F. Tague, now postmaster, and the late William Jennings Bryan, President Wilson's former secretary of state.

The U. S. Army citation, conferring Scotty's Distinguished Service Cross, said:

"For extraordinary heroism in action in Trugny woods northwest of Chateau Thierry, France, July 23rd, 1918, during the Aisne-Marne offensive.

"Private Scott, an automatic rifleman, voluntarily posted himself on an exposed flank to cover a means of approach of an enemy attacking party. Absolutely alone, he opened fire on the enemy, killing and wounding many and stopping the flank attack before he himself was killed by a sniper's bullet. By his heroic act he saved the company a great many casualties and assured the maintenance of the perilous position."

Brigadier General John H. Sherburne of the Yankee Division, speaking at the Scotty memorial exercises, said:

"In his life and death, Scotty came as near to representing the type and personification of the ideal of the true soldier as it is possible to come, and his memory is that by which all veterans would like to be remembered.

"He would not have liked to be called a hero, when he disdained the protection of youth, and he did not dream a hero's dream. He knew there was a job for him to do, and when he was put to guard that cross road, he did it as an American soldier and not as a hero.

"he went to his job courageously, smiling, and, lying alone, tired in mind and body after days of marching without sleep, he held that crossroads.

"I am not here to mourn Scotty, for to his comrades he is not dead, but still lies on his guns, smiling. Scotty fills a high place in history, for his deeds will inspire others to courage, self-sacrifice and patriotism."

Runaway Senorita Happy at Reunion

Happy again, dark-eyed Senorita Maria Robalino, 23-year-old Indian miss from Quito, Ecuador, was back at her household duties today in Newtonville after a frightened flight from the home of her mistress.

Maria, fearing that her progress in learning English was too slow and that this and little mistakes she made in American housework might result in her being sent back home, ran away from the house and was found wandering in Watertown, nearly 36 hours later.

Speaking only a Spanish dialect and with her spare clothing wrapped in a native shawl, the bewildered girl finally was able to explain her situation to an interpreter obtained by police.

After that—everything was all right again. Her employers, Mr. and Mrs. Chesley S. Lancaster of Kirkstall rd., Newtonville, called for her and there was a happy reunion, with Maria being assured that all her fears were foolish fears.

The Lancasters brought Maria back with them three months ago from Ecuador, where for seven years he was a representative of an insurance company.

Maria, employed on a plantation owned by Mrs. Lancaster's sister, had taken a fancy to the Lancasters' seven-year-old son. Before leaving Ecuador they had promised the girl that if she did not like it in North America, or got homesick, they would send her back to her father.

On Friday night, after brooding over her inability to learn English rapidly, and because of a few minor mistakes in household work, she fled

THE NEW British embargo provisions, to which the United States seems to be submitting without effective protest, impose a virtual surrender of neutral rights by this country.

In addition to the flagrant seizure and search of American ships bound for neutral ports, which the British have already undertaken in DOZENS OF CASES in the present war, England has now revived the infamous World War device of the so-called "Navicert System."

Under this system, American exporters of all shipments to Belgium, Denmark, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, Iceland, Finland, Latvia and Esthonia, must stipulate to a British consulate in advance of shipment exactly what is to be shipped and obtain therefrom a "navicert" or commercial passport.

In other words, neutral and peaceful America must GET PERMISSION FROM ENGLAND to do business with other neutral and peaceful countries.

The only thing the United States is doing about this unwarranted attack on American neutral rights is, according to Acting Secretary of State Welles, to advise England that this country does not "indorse" any principle of interference with its neutral trade.

Otherwise we are acquiescent and silent.

Little Holland and little Belgium, with more spirit, rebel against similar impositions.

The Netherlands government has officially advised Dutch ship owners not to take their vessels to sea in the face of such belligerent action.

Only the United States is meek and submissive.

WE SHOULD REMEMBER that similar British exactions almost brought us into the World War against England during the Wilson Administration, and also remember the troubles American shipping has had with England ever since the American Revolution.

It is going to be important not only continually to impress upon the American people the importance of being neutral but also of protecting our neutral American rights.

To do this effectively we must keep free of partisanship for one side or the other in the present war.

Our only prejudices should be in favor of AMERICAN RIGHTS AND AMERICAN INTERESTS.

The United States recently amended its Neutrality Act in order to permit the sale and shipment of war goods to England.

This was done largely because of a widespread belief, or rather widespread propaganda, in the United States that we ought to do everything "short of war" to help England.

IN RETURN, ENGLAND HAS FORCIBLY SEIZED OUR SHIPS AT SEA AND CONDUCTED THEM INTO ENGLISH PORTS AND CONFISCATED FROM THEM SUCH MERCHANDISE AS PLEASED HER EYE OR FANCY.

IN FURTHER RETURN, ENGLAND NOW REFUSES TO PERMIT AMERICAN EXPORTS TO LEAVE THE UNITED STATES WITHOUT HER PERMISSION, UNDER PENALTY OF SEIZURE AND CONFISCATION.

The effect of this is that, by English edict, the peaceful and friendly American nation has no higher stature in England's eye than Germany. American neutrality and friendship get us no more respect from England than German enmity.

The United States should not humiliate itself by asking permission from England to trade with neutrals.

At the very least, like the Dutch, we could and perhaps SHOULD keep our goods, including our war materials, at home.

OUR BETTER CLIMATE produces healthier, stronger young men. We have maintained this for years, and we have frequently cited statistics to support our contention.

Now the United States Army Medical Corps gives us new cause for satisfaction by offering additional and convincing proof of the advantage of living in this part of the country.

Only 15 per cent of the New England applicants for service with the Army have been rejected for physical disability, reports Lieut.-Col. H. A. Clark.

This is an excellent record—one that we believe can never be equalled or surpassed by youth of any other section of the United States.

Here, added to the natural asset of an invigorating and superior climate, there is a widespread health consciousness which has resulted in the writing of school and community regulations intended to diagnose disease at the start.

Physicians and nurses employed by municipalities examine students periodically, discover defective eyesight, malnutrition, tuberculosis and other infirmities which can be corrected by prompt treatment.

Consequently it is not surprising to learn that Army Medical Corps and National Guard doctors are finding fewer cases of lack of weight, defective teeth, flat feet and heart disorders among New England young men.

Human Side of News -:- By EDWIN C. HILL

TUCKED in the newspaper items between a bomb raid and a strike is a metaphysical baby, being experimentally reared in a mansion of 110 rooms, and doing all right, judging from its general presentment of well-being in the news picture.

We got a bare passing mark in metaphysics in our undergraduate days, and can offer nothing helpful as to how the experiment may work out. However, here is one of those little ambuscades of interest and aspiration in the welter of hate, attendant on war, which often surprise you in the day's news, even if you wear blinders when going through the paper.

This metaphysical baby, Jean, now six months old, is the ward of the Royal Fraternity of Master Metaphysicians, which has made the huge Vanderbilt mansion near Oakdale, Long Island, its arcanum of ancient faith. In these vast chambers they nurture what they believe is the mustard seed of truth, brought down through the wreck of the ages, to find glorious fruition in the ultimate triumph of the human soul over evil and death.

THE WISE MEN who gather at the cradle of Baby Jean are no robed and bearded patriarchs. They are businessmen, garbed in the apparel of the market place, with perhaps a derby hat instead of the turban of the guru, and a Malacca stick, rather than the staff of the magi. They think of mortgages and dividends and taxes and percentage, even as you and I.

James B. Schafer, chief among them, as head of the fraternity, who tucks Baby Jean in every night and murmurs into her ear the mystic abracadabra of their ancient faith, is a former high-pressure salesman of automobiles and other non-metaphysical commodities.

HER FIRST LESSON IN METAPHYSICS
Master Metaphysician James Schafer with Baby Jean

The fraternity now numbers thousands, and the members, their leaders insist, are not "the wizards that peep and mutter," noted in Isaiah 8:19. They are men of today who believe that they are the conservators of truth carried over from a million yesterdays.

Baby Jean, whose parents had suffered misfortune, sleeps in eider-down, has a scientifically supervised diet, has warmth and loving care and will be reared in a stately and beautiful home.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- MY DAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 — We seem to be living in an era when little countries have no rights. We must now weep for Finland!

I feel as though I had done little the last 24 hours except sit in the Caucus Room in the old House Office Building and listen to a Congressional hearing! However, we did have a pleasant interlude last night, when Mr. and Mrs. Melvyn Douglas from Hollywood, Cal., dined with us and spent the night. They are a charming couple and it is most interesting to find two people using their gifts for such constructive, social purposes.

I MUST TELL you about these hearings, for I have nothing else to relate to you. At 4 p. m., Thursday, Mr. Hinckley was called for his testimony before the Dies Committee and was allowed to have Mr. Joseph Cadden and Mr. Jack McMichael testify with him, since they are more closely connected with the recent management of the American Youth Congress.

I went down again on Friday to hear Joseph Lash's testimony as executive secretary of the American Student Union. He received his telegram granting him the opportunity to be heard even later than did Mr. Hinckley, so he also came unprepared with all documentary evidence necessary.

MRS. ROOSEVELT
Committee Was Courteous

The majority of the questions Friday were asked by Mr. J. B. Matthews, and his whole attitude, tone of voice and phraseology made one feel that a prisoner, considered guilty, was being tried at the bar. I surmised that this impression was made on other people, for in a little while a gentleman came around and whispered in Mr. Matthews' ear.

I have no way of knowing what was said and it may have been entirely irrelevant to the matters in hand, but in any case it was soothing to Mr. Matthews, for immediately the atmosphere changed. His voice was softer, his manners were more courteous. He was asking questions from another free citizen of the United States.

THE IMPORTANT point which stands out to me after listening in on these hearings, is the fact that what is said by people about other individuals or groups, is not half so important as discovering what the people, themselves, working in these organizations, say and do.

The only other interesting incident Friday was when Mr. Matthews, who evidently is sensitive about what is said about him, remarked heatedly that an untruthful statement had been made about him in Thursday's testimony.

It was almost at the end of the hearing and though a request was made to answer this remark from the record, it could not be done at the time. But I feel sure that the committee will receive the answer later on.

The committee members are genuinely courteous and helpful in their attitude. Judging from my two days' experience, however, the counsel of the committee more nearly carries out the attitude of the committee, at least of those members whom I have had the pleasure of observing, than does the "Director of Research."

WOOLLCOTT SAFE AT AMHERST

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Dec. 4—Here are interesting items of timely information: When Alexander Woollcott started his cross-country lecture tour one of his engagements was at Amherst College . . . Stanley King, president of Amherst, must have seen your production of "The Man Who Came to Dinner" . . . The prexy wrote to Woollcott, in extending the invitation: "You need have no fears. We've cleared the ice from the front doorstep" . . . GEORGE VI: The members of the Bund in Yorkville are saying that you'll need a diver's outfit if you want to inspect the fleet . . . WILL HAYS: When Ambassador Joe Kennedy returns for the Christmas holidays he'll discuss some movie deals—because when Kennedy quits his current assignment he'll return to the picture business . . . GROVER WHALEN: John Ringling North, head of the Ringling Circus, and Michael Todd, producer of "The Hot Mikado," are bound for Europe . . . They're both seeking entertainers for shows here . . . F. D. R.: The 1940 calendars of the National Retail Dry Goods Association is taking no chances of your holiday changes. Even in '40, Nov. 21 is listed as Thanksgiving Day.

JUDITH ANDERSON

NOEL COWARD: The British Intelligence Department has discovered the identity of the Englishman who broadcasts pro-Nazi speeches, with an Oxford accent, from the Berlin radio station. He's a disappointed actor who left the country, embittered, when he was unable to secure a part in a London play called "Hay Fever" . . . JOHN D. M. HAMILTON: You expressed surprise at the President's indication—which appeared on last week's front pages—that the Democratic National Convention might be postponed until September. That story was published in this column on Nov. 20 . . . JIMMY HINES. Dixie Davis, who went to a western hospital the other day, received permission to leave the jurisdiction. He and his wife had been living near here most of the time as guests of a prominent actress.

• • •

ALFRED HITCHCOCK: Dave Selznick has ordered Judith Anderson back to Hollywood for retakes in the movie version of "Rebecca." Miss Anderson's performance, he says, was too perfect—and he wants it a bit hammy, so that the typical movie audiences will get it.

• • •

WILLIAM E. GREEN: When John L. Lewis lunched with the President they settled their political differences. Lewis will back the President in all his decisions. But no plan was agreed upon concerning the settlement of your fight with Lewis.

MONDAY MORNING MUSINGS: That penalty for pushing, which nullified a Charlie O'Rourke touchdown for Boston College against Florida, may prove to be a $75,000 decision . . . The Florida loss, an early season calamity, will shut out the Eagles from the two Southern "bowl" contests, according to the "dope" . . . One of the three "T's", Tennessee, Texas A. and M. and Tulane, is certain to be the Rose Bowl selection . . . The Dallas post-season contest seems to be the only Boston College hope, and there's an excellent chance that the Texas champs, Texas A. and M., will play either at New Orleans or Pasadena.

IT WILL BE SAD if Frank Leahy's great outfit is disbanded without another game to maintain the sudden surge of football-consciousness which struck the entire Boston district suddenly by reason of the Eagles' tremendous surge to national heights . . . That part of the town which went in for some Saturday night roistering after the B. C. victory over Holy Cross hewed to one line of conversation—football and Boston College.— That enthusiasm probably has not abated much with the passing of another twenty-four hours, and what the town is talking about is the subject to write about, as a good and general rule . . . If there was one annoying item of the great Boston College triumph, this column would finger it as the action of the loudspeaker while the two teams were locked in deadly battle in the third period.

SUDDENLY, WITH THE game a scoreless tie, an announcement blasted out of the public address system that a "victory dance" was to be held at the Statler Hotel . . . Superstitious members of the audience, including a number of sports-writers who tremble through a possible no-hit game in the baseball season and avoid mentioning the possibility of a pitching classic for fear of "jinxing" the effort, were stunned . . . We were seated near a group of gentlemen who eke out a living by matching their judgment against the odd-layers . . . One had Boston College on the short end of a 55-100 on the game . . . Progressively, he had wagered further sums on a B. C. victory so that a three touchdown margin would have won him eight times his investment, and a four touchdown margin, twenty to one for his money . . . He was ready to wring the neck of the blaring microphone . . As things turned out, it was only a minor irritation.

MORE ANNOYING TO THIS COLUMN was the failure of the gent who covered the game for one of the most important New York papers to mention Gene Goodreault's brilliant headwork in tackling his teammate O'Rourke for a touchback . . . With several important All-America selections not yet made, mention of Gene's inspired play at that juncture of the game, in a paper consulted by long-distance selectors of the Mythical team, might have won the Haverhill kid a spot on one of the "all—" teams.

Jane Bryan

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 4—Jane Bryan's tragic role as the little Australian dancer in "We Are Not Alone" will not be followed by another sad part. After the way the New York critics raved over her brilliant performance it would not have been surprising if Warners had sought another strong emotional role for the girl who stole the show from Paul Muni. But when Jane gets back from New York Tuesday morning, Hal Wallis is handing her the script of a simple little human interest romance, "Stuff of Heroes," in which she will co-star with Eddie Albert.

Many fans across the country have asked me about the romance between Jane and Eddie. These youngsters who have made two pictures together, "Brother Rat," and "Brother Rat and the Baby," are the best of friends, but their careers right now come first with both.

MISS SULLAVAN

HAS MARLENE DIETRICH, in "Destry Rides Again," set a fad for other glamour girls to go Western in a big way? Milton Bren is readying Jack Jevyne's story "Wyoming" with Margaret Sullavan in mind, and Margaret turning gun-toter is almost as surprising a bit of casting as Marlene's turn-about-face. However, "Wyoming" is the most different sounding Western I've heard about. There are to be no desert scenes or wide open plains. Instead, the entire action takes place in the Northwestern State during the heavy snows of winter. La Sullavan will play a pioneer buckskin-clad gal of the days when Custer was making his last expedition against the Indians.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD AND PITTSBURGH: 'Destry Rides Again" is now running in Pittsburgh. Jimmy Stewart's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Stewart, live about 40 miles from here and they came to see their boy. Mrs. Stewart brought her knitting and stayed at the show all day; Michael Whalen whose father was a preacher here in Pittsburgh, managed a five and ten cent store near the Stanley Theater where we are playing.

WILLIAM POWELL went to school here and his childhood sweetheart still lives in town; we all talked on the radio for the Sun Telegraph the night we arrived. Ronald Reagan, who used to be an announcer, was master of ceremonies: Eric von Stroheim arrived on the Atlantic Clipper and was due in Hollywood today for "I Was an Adventuress"; Cary Grant continues to prefer blondes. He was at Chasens with Louise Stanley.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

WHEN my guardian, Rufus Loyless, told me he was going to marry Polly Langdon, a girl several years his junior, I was overwhelmed. Polly was the type that craved excitement, and I knew she wouldn't be content to spend her evenings in a big easy chair by the radio with Rufus.

Nevertheless they were married in the Spring and, as I had foretold, Polly lead my guardian a merry chase. She embarrassed him by calling him "Pet" in front of his business associates and constantly berated him because he dressed too conservatively.

RUFUS did not argue with his new wife, still he went around the house with a brooding, worried expression on his face. One night he came downstairs dressed in a flashy suit and bright yellow ankle socks.

"Get on your dancing shoes, Polly Wolly," he said merrily, "We're going jitterbugging."

That night marked the beginning of a revolutionary period in our household. My guardian—ordered a complete new wardrobe of debonair clothes and talked baby talk to Polly in public until she was embarrassed to tears.

"Charlotte," she sobbed to me one evening, "what am I going to do? Pet's embarrassing me to death."

"Just as you embarrassed him a short time ago," I said indignantly. "Remember when you were after him to—"

"I know, I know," she interrupted miserably. "But I've changed, Charlotte. I'd give anything to stop this running around. I'm sick to death of it."

NEXT MORNING I cornered my guardian and told him what Polly had said. He grinned broadly.

"It worked," he exclaimed buoyantly. "It worked!"

"What worked?" I asked.

"Why I wrote a letter to Beatrice Fairfax, who gives advice to the lovelorn, and told her my problem and she advised me to give Polly a dose of her own medicine. And it worked!"

He gazed longingly into the living room at his big chair by the radio and I knew he was thinking of how good it was going to be now that he would be able to spend his future evenings slouched back comfortably against the softness of its cushions.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

THERE'S one fact about women which few men understand—namely, that they are THE RESTLESS AND EXCITED SEX.

This, of course, is contrary to all masculine tradition. The average male firmly believes, as did all his grandpas before him, that females are timid, conservative, home-biding bodies who shrink from public life, despise taking chances, dread upheavals and yearn, above all things, to stay put.

The particular lady in question may be a super-armored dreadnaught, yet her lord will vow that there's only one thing for which she really cares, and that is L-O-V-E. Love, says he, is a woman's world.

All these other things she does—running around, holding jobs, sowing wild oats, are against her true nature. The Dear Little Thing doesn't actually know what it's all about. What she really wants is A Home and A Man of Her Own. Some one to protect her—stand between her and the world.

NOTHING could be more wrong. The dominant desire in the average young woman's heart, from the cradle to the grave, is ACTION. Something Doing. Preferably a rumpus. But action always "exciting" action—with plenty of risk and uncertainty. With herself, of course, in the star role.

Not that she'd admit this. To the contrary, you can usually count on her to give a perfect imitation of a Broken Blossom the moment the guns start shooting. But it's only an act. Secretly she dotes on guns and has done her darndest to force the fracas—coyly pretending, all the while, that she's scared pink, and devastated by the courage of the Ruthless, Reckless Male.

MEN are really the cautious and conservative sex . . . the born duckers, dodgers and passers-of-the-buck.

A man may enjoy the impersonal adventure of a hunting trip or the mass movement of a big war or political campaign.

But every normal male views with horror the emotional, personal mix-ups in which women delight and at which they excel.

Also, men are the STAY-PUTTERS.

Have you ever tried to take a treasured, five-year-old hat from Friend Husband? Or change the position of the living room furniture as a "Surprise"?

If you have—nuff said! If you haven't . . . DON'T!

BLONDIE — The Lady In a Glass House

PEARLY PLAYS A HUNCH

BY LOUIS DI ZEREGA

A Complete Short Story Daily on This Page

THE pretty girl in the blue gingham dress got off the street car, and even old Sam West, the motorman, could see she was crying. He turned and gave Pearly Gates a dirty look. It was Pearly who had been sitting next to her and talking to her.

Pearly Gates rode on in silence to the end of the line. Then he spoke to the motorman.

"Want to talk to you, Sam."

"Ain't at all sure I care to be seen talking to you. What's the idea of making that little girl cry?"

"You got a few minutes before you start back. How about a cup of coffee?"

Pearly Gates was going on 70, and nobody could remember a time when he hadn't been called Pearly; but if the nickname had ever had a complimentary significance it had been forgotten long ago. No doubt he was an old reprobate, the way everybody said. He'd take a drink, and put a bet on a horse, and if you felt like playing pinochle, or cribbage, or checkers, they said Pearly would accommodate you, and take your money, most likely, but nobody'd ever even hinted he wasn't altogether on the level. During his lifetime he'd learned a lot of things, including several he shouldn't, but one thing he never learned was how to mind his own business when a lady, either young or old, started to cry.

"The girl that was crying was Tom Jordan's daughter. Mary, her name is. Tom was in that accident, remember? Been out of work thirteen weeks, and it'll be a couple more before he gets back. They're being evicted in the morning. Out on the sidewalk. Guess maybe that's why she was crying."

A HATED MAN

Sam West took a swig of coffee and wiped his mustache.

"Ought to be a law," he said.

"Hank Boggins is the landlord. I understand you and Hank are pals."

"Me and Hank Boggins pals? Why, I wouldn't be caught dead in the same street with him! The dirty robber!!"

Pearly grinned slyly. "I caught him once myself. Moving a checker piece with his elbow, when he thought I wasn't looking."

"What did you tell Mary?"

"Gave her a quarter. Told her to go to a movie and forget her troubles. Told her to met me at 4 o'clock, and meantime I'd see Boggins and fix everything up. Guess maybe I stuck my neck out."

The motorman whistled. "Guess maybe you did. How much is the rent?"

The Cast of Characters in "Pearly Plays a Hunch"

PEARLY GATES, who hears that TOM JORDAN is being evicted.
HANK BOGGINS, Jordan's landlord.
SAM WEST, a street car motorman.

"Thirty-five bucks. You got 35 bucks, Sam?"

"Don't be a darn fool. I ain't got a million, either, nor any other number."

They were silent for some moments.

"Look, Sam," said Pearly finally. "I want you to do me a favor. You bring the car back to this end of the line about a quarter of four, don't you? Well, here's a nickel. I want you to make a phone call for me then."

"I guess I could do that. And if there's any bad turn I can do to Boggins—"

After leaving the motorman Pearly's first stop was the local pawnshop, where he gave up his gold watch, his most cherished possession, in exchange for a loan of $10. Thence he proceeded to the Paramount barber shop.

The Paramount barber shop was owned and operated by Hank Boggins. Boggins had considerable real estate holdings, so that many of the local people were his tenants, and he was so well connected politically that he was able to operate a bookmaking establishment, taking bets on the races, openly and unmolested. There were a half dozen men in the shop, one of whom was getting a haircut, but the main activity of the place was not of a tonsorial nature.

NO LEGAL PROOF

"Hello, Hank," Pearly greeted the proprietor. "I want a shave, and I got a date with a pretty girl in half an hour."

"Be about 10 minutes, Pearly. Care to make a little bet?"

"Never bet with a man who's going to shave me. If I lose, I lose my money. If I win, likely I get my throat cut. Stole anybody's eye teeth yet today?"

Hank didn't answer, and Pearly busied himself with a year-old magazine till it was his turn.

"Now, you take this next race at Pimlico," Boggins advised him when he had him safely seated. "It's two-year-olds, and everybody figures you never can tell how a two-year-old's going to run. But a smart fella like you could look over the past performances and breeding, and maybe figure out a sleeper. Or bet on a jockey—that's pretty good way to do with two-year-olds."

"Go fly a kite," said Pearly.

"There's about 10 horses starting in this race, and the winner'll pay a good price. You might make a lot of money."

"And likely get my throat cut."

The barber-bookmaker finished the job in silence. A street car trundled past the door making a tremendous clatter, and Pearly reached for his watch, swearing wildly when he failed to find it and remembered where it was.

"That's old Sam West," said Boggins. "For 10 years now he clangs his bell every time he takes his car past here, just to get my goat. Knows I don't like the noise. Bet he rang her a dozen times."

"What's he mad at you about?"

"Oh, we went partners in a deal once. Claims I robbed him."

"I suppose his savings wound up in your pants."

"Well, he never could prove nothing in a court of law."

PEARLY'S SYSTEM

Pearly produced his $10 bill ,and noted the gleam in Boggins' eyes at the sight of money.

"Now, you take that third race at Pimlico—"

"Oh, for gosh sake!" said Pearly hotly. "Can't you leave a man in peace? All right, I'll give you a bet. Let's have a look at your form sheet."

The document was produced, and Pearly pondered it briefly.

"Post time is 3:40, and it's 3:50 now. You want me to make a bet so a man that's already over!"

Boggins' eyes were glued on the ten dollar bill. Pearly was peeved, and a man who makes a bet because he's peeved is a sucker. A two-year-old race is a sucker race.

"You've been sitting in that chair for more than 10 minutes, and nobody's come into the place, or 'phoned. Can't even see out the window on account of the curtains. Nobody here knows the result. You said you wanted to make a bet, and I'm willing to take it."

"Well, if I said I'd bet, I will,'" said Pearly, resigned. "Scatterbrain, number eight. Five bucks on Scatterbrain."

Boggins took the money and returned the change. Then he went to the telephone.

He returned scowling. "Scatterbrain wins. Pays $22.50 for $2.

Pearly did some figuring. "That makes $56.25, not counting my five."

Boggins counted out the money in silence. Pearly picked up five dollars, then thirty-five more, then a half dollar. The rest of the money he pushed back across the desk.

"This here is all I want. You can keep the rest; I don't want any part of it. Five bucks is what I put up and the 50 cents is for expenses, like a shave, and a phone call and a ticket to the movies. The other $35—"

Boggins was eyeing him, and Pearly went on, his voice suddenly hard:

"You got a tenant named Tom Jordan. He's had a little trouble, been in the hospital. You gave him a dispossess. Give me a receipt for his rent, and here's your $55."

Boggins wrote out the receipt.

The rest of the money he pushed back across the case.

"How come you picked Scatterbrain? Just a hunch, I suppose?" Pearly took the paper and ambled toward the door.

"Sam West is still sore about the way you robbed him 10 years ago," he said. "So he clangs the bell every time he goes past here. Only it wasn't a dozen times like you said. It was only eight times. Scatterbrain was number eight on the form sheet. I suppose you could call it a hunch, if you wanted to."

Lunch boxes to pack!—after-school snacks—a before-bedtime "bite". The wise mother likes to keep on hand a goodly supply of wholesome cookies to meet all demands. Here are some with the special advantage that, because of their glycerine content, they can be made up in sizable batches that will keep fresh much longer.

SUGAR COOKIES

2 cups flour
4 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
2 eggs, well beaten with
2 tsp. glycerine
½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 tsp. lemon juice
1 tsp. vanilla

Sift flour, measure, add salt and baking powder and sift together. Cream shortening and sugar. Add eggs beaten with glycerine, lemon juice and vanilla; then add dry ingredients. Chill. Roll dough to ⅛-inch thickness. Cut in shapes with floured cookie cutter. Place on greased cookie sheet, brush with glycerine and sprinkle with sugar. Bake 8 to 10 minutes in a moderate oven of 400 deg. F.

The glycerine helps to give the tops of the cookies a glaze.

CRANBERRY COOKIES

1 cup cranberry sauce, juice drained
½ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
1 egg
2 cups flour
1 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. vanilla

Cream sugar and shortening and add well beaten egg, flour which has been sifted with baking powder and salt. When well blended, add and blend in vanilla. Chill dough. Roll out very thin on slightly floured board and cut with round cookie cutter. Place one teaspoon cranberry sauce on cookie round. Place on top of cookie round from which center has been cut. Press together firmly with tines of fork and bake in a moderate oven (375 deg. F.) about 10 to 15 minutes.

NEW ENGLAND FRUIT COOKIES

1 cup butter, for shortening
1½ cups brown sugar
3 eggs
1 tsp. glycerine
1 tsp. soda
2 tbsp. boiling water
3¼ cups flour
¾ tsp. salt
1 tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. cloves
⅛ tsp. mace
1 cup walnut meats, broken
½ cup currants
½ cup seeded and shredded raisins

Rub currants and raisins with ¾ tsp. of the glycerine and allow to stand at least a half hour. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cut in shortening. Combine egg yolk and milk and beat slightly. Add to flour mixture to make a soft dough. Roll out one-half the dough ¼ in. thick; cut it into quarters. Fit each quarter into muffin pan and fill with fruit. Pinch edges of dough together. Repeat with remaining dough. Bake in a hot oven (425 deg. F.) for 15 minutes, then reduce heat to 375 deg. F. and continue baking for another 15 minutes.

CHRISTMAS LISTS and what to give to who is the most often discussed problem of holiday shopping . . . but for most everyone—you and I and even the debutantes getting the wherewithal to pay for the things we'd like to buy is also a pretty important problem . . .

We have just discovered a group of debs who have solved this question very easily . . . and they are busily augmenting the allowance they receive from papa by working at the Debutante Bureau of Harper's Bazaar . . .

Post deb Amy Lang, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Lang, is the efficient organizer of the Boston Bureau and Mary Hastings is her second in command . . . They preside over the Harper's office at the Hotel Somerset which is a beehive of industry as anywhere from six to twenty-five girls gather daily to check over lists, telephone and write letters to induce their friends to subscribe to the magazine . . .

When we dropped in there the other day we found some of the season's most attractive social butterflies temporarily turned into self determined little business women . . . chalking up subscriptions a mile a minute and very enthusiastic about earning some of their own spending money . . . Among them were Mary Whitney of Lincoln, Patricia Bayne of Dedham, Genevra Hobbs of Chestnut Hill, Ruth English, Eleanor Harding, Beverly Pratt, Elaine Hartt and Sandy Loder . . .

Post debs working at the bureau include Jean Halladay, Nancy Sears, Dorothy O'Day, Barbara Fulton, Jean Rae and Barbara Barry . . .

CHICAGO'S BACHELOR'S BALL is held a few months earlier than Beantown's and the 1939 edition was a brilliant affair on Thanksgiving Eve . . . The beautiful Mrs. Potter Palmer, 3d, was in the receiving line and wore a rustling gown of pearl gray taffeta to set off her lovely blonde hair . . . She is the former Rose Saltonstall Movius of Boston, daughter of Mrs. A. L. West Movius and was the belle of every party during her debutante season a few years ago . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Van Kirk (Isabella Gardner) came on from Long Island to spend Thanksgiving with Bella's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Peabody Gardner, Jr. . . . The holiday was a double header celebration for it was the first anniversary of the Van Kirks' wedding . . .

Mrs. Arthur Dupee, Jr. (Connie Turner), a bride of a month, has returned from her honeymoon and was warmly greeted at Symphony the other afternoon . . . She wore a becoming blue suit with a gray fur jacket . . .

Mrs. Jasper Whiting will be hostess at a tea tomorrow at her home on Chestnut street, to meet the workers for the third annual Christmas Bazaar to benefit the Rutland Training Center which is operated by the Central New England Sanatorium . . . The Bazaar opens next Monday at 575 Boylston st. . . .

You Can Be Beautiful

'So Red the Rose'

By ARLINE GOULD

TWO OF the winter's loveliest cosmetic and fragrance creations come hand in hand . . . a cologne dedicated to winter and a "so red the rose" makeup.

This cologne fragrance, as though by request, since so many readers have phoned in for a winter cologne, has been created especially for furs. It is pungent, lasting . . . not an Oriental type, but still an exotic one.

During the cold winter months we all want a fragrance that is not too heavy but still has that certain touch which gives elegance. Perhaps you have noticed that in the summer months, the heat of the body helps to give off a delicate perfume . . . in winter, one needs a heavier perfume to overcome the coarser odor of furs, and one that will be lasting in the harsh weather.

You'll love the simplicity of this exclusive cologne, which is only $1 for four ounces; and a perfect gift idea. It is a triangular bottle whose label is a gay picture of starlight poinsettias.

As for the make-up, it is a rich, deep American Beauty red. Wonderful with evening cerise or ballet pinks. Grand with plum, rosy wine or muscatel. And exciting with hard blues or black.

If you would like to learn more about this new winter cologne or the "so red the rose" make-up, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4-900, week-days until 5:30, or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Love And Marriage

Aftermath of Self-Sacrifice

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Mother died a year ago. At that time I was engaged to a very fine young man and expected to be married soon after. I was all broken up over my mother's death, and to prevent father from marrying a woman to whom he had been attentive, even during mother's lifetime, I broke my engagement so that I could devote my entire time to providing a home for him and my two younger brothers.

It seems that my good intentions have all gone with the wind, because he is going to marry this woman, and one of my brothers has left home and is working in another city. Perhaps I made a mistake in not getting married so that I would have been able to do more for my brothers. Everything will be so changed when my father brings this other woman home. I can do so much more for the boys in a home of my own.

Do you think it would be all right for me to write to my former fiance and say that I made a mistake and hope he will come back? I hear from mutual friends that he has not been attentive to anyone in the meantime.

L.

Write that letter before the sun sets today, my dear, and make it plenty humble too. Under the stress of your grief you've made a sorry mistake. Try to rectify it before it's too late. As you realize now, you will be able to do more for the younger brothers as an independent matron than as a daughter in your father's house. Live your own life, and lots of luck.

GOOD HOUSEKEEPING MAGAZINE

DOES IODIZED SALT HELP GOITRE VICTIMS? | WHAT IS A GOOD DIET TO FIGHT COLITIS?

By DR. WALTER H. EDDY

Director of Good Housekeeping Bureau

Questions concerning foods, sanitation, and health will be answered only if a stamped, addressed envelope accompanies your request. No exceptions can be made to this rule. Prescriptional advice cannot be given, nor can samples be analyzed. Address Dr. Walter H. Eddy, 57th st. at 8th ave., New York City, New York.

There Probably Is Value In Its Use

Is there any value in the use of iodized salt now on the market for reducing a benign goiter?

Miss H. W., Ill.

It is known that iodine protects against goiter. Sometimes a mere trace will do this, but when the disease is once established, large quantities of iodine frequently fail to effect a cure. The placing of iodine in salt has been recommended by medical authorities for use in goitrous regions.

The quantity used in salt is not sufficient for curative purposes after the goiter has developed. You should consult a physician with regard to all curative processes. Usually iodine is administered, but the quantity should be determined by the attending physician.

No Such Rays from a Wood Fire

Does light from a wood fire contain ultra-violet rays as sunlight does? Mrs. M. G. D., N. J.

The amount of ultra-violet in a wood fire is much too limited to exert any therapeutic effect such as is obtained from the direct rays of the sun, or from the specially prepared lamps which are on the market at the present time, or through the several varieties of ray-transmitting window glass now in use.

Worth a Good Trial

I suffered from an attack of colitis last summer, and my recovery has been slow. Any information you might be able to give me for improving the condition of my health would be very welcome.

Mrs. L. H. M., N. Y.

Colitis is a form of catarrh of the intestines and is, therefore, very resistant to treatment. The acidophilus bacillus is natural to the human digestive tract and, consequently, is able to withstand the attacks of the digestive fluids and thus reach the colon in a living state. It is possible that if you will use generously in your diet, acidophilus milk to which is added milk sugar in the quantity of about a tablespoonful to a glass, you might effect improvement.

Vitamin B deficiency in the diet may also produce this condition, and a plentiful addition of vitamin B rich materials might also prove of benefit. Whole cereals and vegetables are good sources of vital vitamin.

Not Necessary To Boil Lettuce

Is there anything in the theory that lettuce is unfit to eat unless boiled, on account of some germ which is said to exist on it? Would appreciate your valuable advice on this subject.

S. B. L., Cal.

There is a germ called the "botulinus" whose native habitat seems to be the soil. For that reason soil vegetables are frequently canned, or cooked for a considerable period of time, in order to be sure that this germ is destroyed. Since lettuce also grows in the soil, there is a possibility of infection with this germ, but it is pretty remote. In fact, I know of no cases reported of botulinus poisoning from properly-washed lettuce in the raw state. Obviously, thorough washing is desirable.

VITAMIN B is the anti-neuritic vitamin, because its omission from the diet results in a multiple nerve inflammation or "polyneuritis" associated with beri-beri disease. This vitamin is obtained by eating vegetables, fruits and whole cereals, such as graham flour, corn meal and bran.

Silver Wedding

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you please give me particulars as to toasts to be given at a 25th wedding anniversary? Is there a definite form, or is it in order to use one's own initiative?

R.

There are few more delightful opportunities to use initiative than in the proposing of toasts! Most toasts are so "cut and dried" that initiative is the last quality that we would accuse them of having. There are no rules and regulations ing of toasts.

PAUL SUTTON REJOINS BROWN DERBY SHOW

By SAM BERENSON

As the season gains momentum, so does our regard for that very capable baton-swishing of the Cocoanut Grove's Mickey Alpert . . . smartness is the keynote of the Grovian policy, for this excellent rhythm is well set off by the bright new disappearing stage and colibre of the floor shows . . . always a dependable take-in . . . Paul Sutton returns to the Brown Derby those gay Noel Sherman productions, which is an indication of the brilliance of the offering bowing in tonight . . . a flashy revue that is destined to take the town by storm . . . a wealth of talent and a line of gals as pretty as the Hub can offer.

• • •

Headlining the list of spotlight-bowers at the Latin Quarter this week is that starry pair of youngsters, Buster and Billy Burwell, whose six months' engagement at the Paradise Restaurant is a record run . . . we doubt not that attention may occasionally wander from Miss Burwell's twinkling toes, for this young lady is a glamorous young lady indeedy . . . remaining are the Mazzone-Abbott Apaches . . . Jack Brown's Casa Manana holds top position along the rialto for banquet and party business . . . attractive prices and excellent food are two compelling reasons . . . the Casa's show this week is one of the season's best, featuring the sensational tap dancers, Jerry and Lillian . . . Nar-A-Ganset, one of the newer merry rendezvous, is catching on . . .

• • •

One of our favorite handsmen, Jimmy Lunceford, lingers on at the sparkling Southland, where a bang-up show collaborates with that would famous downbeating . . . few groups can put over a song like the Lunceford crew . . . clicking in a big way is the Marionette room at the Hotel Brunswick . . . the entertainment policy here has been to offer varied and top-notch talent . . . and should you doubt the success of this platform we suggest that you join the crowds here . . . Morey Pearl dropped in to tell us that the kitchen has been enlarged three times the size at Pop-Eyes . . .

Dorothy (Milk Bath) Henry stays over at the Crawford House . . . a new revue that is plenty good and should draw much applause . . .

• • •

Club Mayfair's bill this week a tour-beller . . . Charles Collins, Dorothy Stone, Gracie Barrie and Unice Healey . . . this should be on your "must" pad for tonight or tomorrow, as they close then . . . for dancing Johnnie Cole and his lads . . .

• • •

Extra gay this week is the Law-rence Hofbrau, where Joe Waganbach promises a smash show that will be one of the season's best . . .

• • •

Mighty pleasant melody-making, those afternoon rhythms served up by the Don Humbert strings from the Ort Grille Room . . . while the shows that Izzy has been puting on are meriting some mighty nice comments from the customers thereat . . . no busier spot in town . . . No let up at all in the briskness of the Hotel Essex merry-making . . .

• • •

Don't pass up the Bradford Roof offering this week . . . a new show that packs plenty of color and action that is guaranteed to take your breath away . . . Murial Daniels takes the spot in the Westminster's floor show this week . .

• • •

Duke McHale, dancing star of former show "Babe in Arms," opens this week at the popular Cappys . . . The Duke is well known in these parts and should do well there, as he is an excellent tap dancer . . .

Amy Fong Back At Old Howard

Slant-eyed, sultry Amy Fong, who left her inhibitions, if any in China, brings her newly minted version of a Chinese folk-dance to the Old Howard this week. On tour recently, it has proved the most popular in her varied and daring repertoire.

Amy Fong

Ceil Von Dell, Broadway's newest darling in burlesque circles, is another featured performer in this week's show, which boasts such pretties as Ginger Waldron, Patricia Joyce, Charlotte Foster and a chorus of 30 "Oriental" song-and-dance girls.

Happy Hyatt, who can out-wiggle a Nautch dancer and cracks jokes, too, and Billy Hagen, of "cheese-'n'-crackers" fame, are the show's top comics.

Then, there are Harry Seymour, Dutch comedian; Helen Reynolds octette, champion skaters; Charles Harris, Gen Hamilton, Bobby Del Rio, Carlos and Carmencita and Claire and Connie LaVerne.

Show starts daily at 12 noon, 2:30 and 8:30 p. m., with a special Friday midnight show, starting at 11:30.

Gayety Stars Gypsy Lee

Shush, don't look now, but Gypsy Lee's new "whisper dance," featured in the Gayety Theater's "Follies Brassiere" burlesque revue, is rumored to be hotter than hot.

Gypsy Lee

Altogether, this week's show, with its new comedy and musical ballet numbers, is reported to be simply amazing.

Importantly featured in the current show are Irma Vogelee, Mae Chester, Jane Wade, the Royce Sisters, holding up the department of pulchritude. For comedy, the honors go to Herbie Faye and Bert Carr. Others are Jack Lyons, Al Golden, Jr., Jack Shaw, Bullah and May and a chorus of 36 cutie cuticles.

Last of De Cou Series Saturday

The De Cou dream-pictures lecture series closes Saturday afternoon at Tremont Temple with "Colorful Western Wonderlands," which provides glimpses of picturesque Mt. Rushmore and the Black Hills of South Dakota and the Grand Canyon.

Boston Schedule For 'G. W. T. W.'

David O. Selznick's $3,850,000 production of Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind," which is to have a topper-and-tails world premiere in Atlanta, Ga, a week from Friday evening, will have its initial New England showing on Thursday, Dec. 21, at Loew's State and Orpheum theaters.

As Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer planned it, its distribution and exhibition are a complete departure from the usual. Instead of the customary procedure of releasing 200 and 300 prints of the picture at once, Metro will spot "Gone With the Wind" in six key cities, including Boston, during the Christmas-New Year period.

• • •

The Atlanta world premiere is to be attended by Vivien Leigh, who plays youknowwho; Clark Gable, ditto; Leslie Howard, Olivia De Havilland, Laura Hope Crews, Ann Rutherford, Ona Munson, Evelyn Keyes and other members of the supporting cast.

The New York premier, also a formal affair, is scheduled for Tuesday, Dec. 19, at the Astor and Capitol Theaters, following which there will be openings in Boston and in Reading and Harrisburg, Pa., on Dec. 21, and in Cincinnati on the 26th and in Los Angeles on the 28th.

Because of the unusual length of "Gone With the Wind"—you could fly from New York to Chicago during the three hours and 40 minutes of its unreeling—Loew's management is invoking a reserved and non-reserved policy for Boston moviegoers.

• • •

At Loew's State Theater, there will be two shows daily—at 1.30 and 8 p. m., all seats reserved. At the Orpheum, there are to be three shows daily except Sunday—at 10 a. m., 2:45 p. m. and 8 p. m. There will be no reservations for the first two shows at the Orpheum but all seats will be reserved at the evening shows. On Sunday, "Gone" will be shown twice at both theaters at 2 and 8 p. m.

Prices for both daily and Sunday matinees are 75c and $1.10, including tax. Prices for evening performances, including Sunday, are $1.10 and $1.50, tax included.

Tickets may be purchased at the State and Orpheum box-offices and also at Filene's and Herrick's.

• • •

The same method of exhibition will, it is said, also be followed when "Gone" eventually gets around to the neighborhood houses, and there will be "no reduction in admission prices until September, 1940," according to Howard Dietz, Metro's publicity chief. P. D.

MELANIE, as Olivia de Havilland portrays her in David O. Selznick's $3,850,000 production of Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind," which is to have its New England premiere at Loew's State and Orpheum theaters Thursday, Dec. 21.

Globe Patrons Greet Nora Ford

Nora Ford's return to Globe Burlesque Theater this week doubtless will occasion considerable satisfaction, not to say jubilation, for Miss F. is a prime favorite of burlesque-minded Bostonians.

Nora Ford

Another footlights Venus, Virginia Jones, as well as the curvacious "Buster" Phillips, the vivacious Kayla Foster and the girl with stars in her eyes, Joy St. Clair, are assisting Miss Ford in making this week's show a feast for eyes and ears.

Mandy Kay, whose name is a synonym for Globe comedy, as usual heads that department this week. Aiding him are Al Pharr, Harry Ryan, Les Golden and Irving Benson.

Rounding out the cast are the 30 Bernardettes and such vaudeville specialists as Dean and Brown and Mason and Tene.

Film attractions are "Prison Break," with Baron MacLane, and "Ex-Champ," starring Victor McLaglen. Friday night's show will have several surprises for the weekly radio amateur contestants.

'WHEN WE ARE MARRIED' PREMIERE TONIGHT AT WILBUR

By PEGGY DOYLE

Anything can and does happen in "When We Are Married," J. B. Priestley's newest farce-comedy which opens tonight at the Wilbur Theater.

Like "Morning's At Seven," "When We Are Married" has no stars. Rather, it has a starring cast, namely Estelle Winwood, Alison Skipworth, J. C. Nugent, Percy Kilbride, Ann Andrews, Sally O'Neil, A. P. Kaye, Philip Tonge, Leona Powers, Henry Mowbray, Lee Parry, Carol Lorell, Marian Waring-Manley and Arthur Gould-porter.

An entirely different side of the author as a playwright is revealed in "When We Are Married," for calamitous news and the consequences of its leaking out provide Playwright Priestly with ample opportunity for introducing humor and suspense.

• • •

The world premiere of "The Great American Family," by Robert Frayne Chapin and Charley King Lee Shippey's novel of the same name, takes place tomorrow evening at the Copley Theater.

The co-authors, who are hopeful of a Broadway opening, have written their play around a youthful writer, who, not any different from thousands of other young writers, yearns to write the great American novel. He is sidetracked by parenthood.

Wendell Corey and Alice Wiley play the leads.

• • •

"Three After Three," the Ruth Selwyn-Shubert musical with book by Guy Bolton and score and lyrics by Hoagy Carmichael and Johnny Mercer, continues for a second and final week at the Shubert.

Its three Hollywood stars, Mitzi Green, Simone Simon and Mary Brian, plus Frances Williams and her throaty and authoritative contralto, and Stepin Fetchit and his comic antics, would seem to make up for a plot that's a bit on the oldhat side.

Nearly every performance has been a sellout—that, for the opinions of fault-finding firstnighters and captious critics!—and this week's advance sale is exuberantly healthy. After Saturday night's performance, the show moves on to Baltimore for a week and after that nobody's telling—yet.

• • •

Over at the Plymouth, "Tobacco Road" tonight begins the third week of an unusually successful second engagement.

Charles "Slim" Timblin, long a vaudeville headliner, is stressing the comedy inherent in the Jeeter Lester role and Plymouth audiences are rocking with laughter these nights.

HELENE LE BERTHON

'Tobacco Road' Actress

Mr. Priestley, agreeing that this is no time for tragedy, has created a swiftly-moving and rollicking farce. At the moment when three highly respectable couples of a small community are about to celebrate the 25th anniversary of their joint weddings, the discovery is made that the original ceremony was technically wrong—that they were never legally married at all.

The attempts to hush up this

Hollywood Paragraphs

By Louella O. Parsons

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 4 Now Arizona throws her hat in the ring along with New York and Florida, in trying to lure the movies away from Hollywood. Come Dec. 7, there will be big doings in Phoenix, Arizona, when they preview the picture "Gentleman from Arizona," entirely filmed, produced and directed there.

They hope it will prove to Hollywood producers just what can be done in other places. The governor of Arizona will be on hand and a lot of Hollywood bigwigs are invited. The cast includes John King, Joan Barclay, J. Farrell MacDonald and a local child, Ruth Reece. Monogram will release it.

• • •

Paramount comes up the "winnah" in the tug-o-war between three big studios for "Country Lawyer." Well they might be enthused, for this best seller by Bellamy Partridge has sold 260,000 copies in three months. Partridge's biography of his country lawyer father is particularly valuable now for it is not unlike Clarence Day's "Life With Father," one of the top hits on the Broadway stage.

Whether in movies or on the stage the public seems to want more and more of these human, down-to-earth stories. The age range of the country lawyer will present a casting problem since the story starts in his youth and carries on to middle age. If the youth angle is emphasized, Fred MacMurray is elected for the star role. Walter Huston is also a likely candidate.

URGE U. S. DROP RUSS RELATIONS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP)—The question of whether United States recognition of Soviet Russia might be withdrawn was kept to the fore by Republican contentions that the Roosevelt administration's recognition of the Communist government was partly to blame for the invasion of Finland.

Publicists for the Republican national committee issued excerpts from statements made by party leaders in the past, opposing the exchange of ambassadors with the Soviets.

Among them was a 1923 declaration attributed to Chief Justice Hughes, then Secretary of State, that "there should be no encouragement to those efforts of the Soviet authorities to visit upon other peoples the disastere that have overwhelmed the Russian people."

Distribution of Republican statements opposing recognition followed recent comment of former President Hoover that Mr. Roosevelt had given the Communist government standing "as a decent member of the family of nations."

In another statement issued through the national committee Rep. Knutson (R) of Minnesota declared the recognition which the present administration granted the Soviet government in 1933 had "strengthened the hand of Stalin."

The administration, Knutson contended, could not "escape its share of responsibility for the tragedy that has overtaken Finland."

Some senators of both major parties have advocated that diplomatic relations with Moscow be severed to underscore this government's condemnation of the attack upon the little Baltic state.

Secretary of State Hull has had nothing to say about this possibility as yet, however, and persons opposed to withdrawing recognition have contended the United States would be in a better position to aid Finland if it remained on speaking terms with the Soviets.

From Montevideo came word that Uruguay's foreign minister, Alberto Guani, was communicating with foreign offices of the Pan-American union for their views regarding "Russian aggression against Finland," in order to make a joint declaration of condemnation.

STORM WHIPS PHILIPPINES

MANILA, Dec. 4 (AP)—The central Philippine Islands were whipped by cyclonic winds tonight but a typhoon which had been moving slowly toward Manila apparently had halted. Two men were killed in Masbate Province but no other deaths had been reported.

MONEY TO LOAN | MONEY TO LOAN | MONEY TO LOAN | MONEY TO LOAN | MONEY TO LOAN

YOU CAN GET A LOAN OF $100

IF YOU CAN PAY BACK $6.41 A MONTH

Read how you can borrow promptly and without asking others for help—No credit inquiries of friends or relatives

YOU need money? You can borrow—quickly and in privacy—if you can make small regular payments on your loan. You can borrow for any worthy purpose—to clean up old debts, to meet an emergency, to pay doctor or dental bills, to take advantage of an opportunity.

Suppose you need $100 and can repay $9.75 a month. Your installments will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $6.41 a month for twenty months will also repay a $100 loan.

Choose your own payments

Find the amount of cash you need in the first column of the loan table. Then read across, picking out the monthly payment you wish to make. Note that you may make very small payments if you prefer. Or you may pay larger installments and pay up sooner. See how little your loan costs if you repay in a short time. A loan of $100 repaid in four months costs only $6.32.

Simple to borrow

All you do to get a Household Finance loan is tell us about your needs. We ask for no salary or wage assignment, no stocks or bonds. No credit inquiries are made of friends or relatives. No need to ask your friends or fellow-workers to sign the loan papers with you. You get your loan promptly and privately.

Get full details without obligation

Last year more than 600,000 men and women found the Household Finance plan a simple solution to their emergency money problems. In cases of sickness or unemployment Household shows the borrower every consideration. Last year Household foreclosed on only one chattel mortgage for each 10,000 loans—an action taken then only as protection against fraud.

Why don't you learn how Household service can help you? There's no obligation if you do not borrow. Phone or visit us today.

URGE U. S. DROP RUSS RELATIONS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP)—The question of whether United States recognition of Soviet Russia might be withdrawn was kept to the fore by Republican contentions that the Roosevelt administration's recognition of the Communist government was partly to blame for the invasion of Finland.

Publicists for the Republican national committee issued excerpts from statements made by party leaders in the past, opposing the exchange of ambassadors with the Soviets.

Among them was a 1923 declaration attributed to Chief Justice Hughes, then Secretary of State, that "there should be no encouragement to those efforts of the Soviet authorities to visit upon other peoples the disasters that have overwhelmed the Russian people."

Distribution of Republican statements opposing recognition followed recent comment of former President Hoover that Mr. Roosevelt had given the Communist government standing "as a decent member of the family of nations."

In another statement issued through the national committee, Rep. Knutson (R) of Minnesota declared the recognition which the present administration granted the Soviet government in 1933 had "strengthened the hand of Stalin."

The administration, Knutson contended, could not "escape its share of responsibility for the tragedy that has overtaken Finland."

Some senators of both major parties have advocated that diplomatic relations with Moscow be severed to underscore this government's condemnation of the attack upon the little Baltic state.

Secretary of State Hull has had nothing to say about this possibility as yet, however, and persons opposed to withdrawing recognition have contended the United States would be in a better position to aid Finland if it remained on speaking terms with the Soviets.

From Montevideo came word that Uruguay's foreign minister, Alberto Guani, was communicating with foreign offices of the Pan-American union for their views regarding "Russian aggression against Finland," in order to make a joint declaration of condemnation.

STORM WHIPS PHILIPPINES

MANILA, Dec. 4 (AP)—The central Philippine Islands were whipped by cyclonic winds tonight but a typhoon which had been moving slowly toward Manila apparently had halted. Two men were killed in Masbate Province but no other deaths had been reported.

YOU CAN GET A LOAN OF $100

IF YOU CAN PAY BACK $6.41 A MONTH

Read how you can borrow promptly and without asking others for help—No credit inquiries of friends or relatives

YOU need money? You can borrow—quickly and in privacy—if you can make small regular payments on your loan. You can borrow for any worthy purpose—to clean up old debts, to meet an emergency, to pay doctor or dental bills, to take advantage of an opportunity.

Suppose you need $100 and can repay $9.75 a month. Your installments will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $6.41 a month for twenty months will also repay a $100 loan.

Choose your own payments

Find the amount cash you need in the first column of the loan table. Then read across, picking out the monthly payment you wish to make. Note that you may make very small payments if you prefer. Or you may pay larger installments and pay up sooner. See how little your loan costs if you repay in short time. A loan of $100 repaid in four months costs only $6.33.

Simple to borrow

All you do to get a Household Finance Loan is tell us about your needs. We ask for no salary or wage assignment, no stocks or bonds. No credit inquiries are made of friends or relatives. No need to ask your friends or fellow-workers to sign the loan papers with you. You get your loan promptly and privately.

Get full details without obligation

Last year more than 600,000 men and women found the Household Finance plan a simple solution to their emergency money problems. In cases of sickness or unemployment Household shows the borrower every consideration. Last year Household foreclosed on only one chattel mortgage for each 10,000 loans—an action taken then only as protection against fraud.

Why don't you learn how Household service can help you? There's no obligation if you do not borrow. Phone or visit us today.

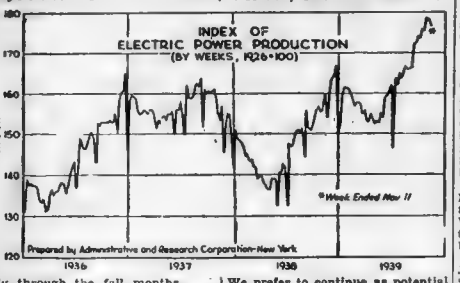
How N. E. 'Boom' Figures Hold Up

Year-end New England trade gains promise to continue the fashion of breadth as well as extent inaugurated after Labor Day . . . Recovery, hereabouts is definitely of an unlimited kind . . . All important financial and industrial divisions are contributing to the upturn . . .

INDICATORS . . . Measuring physical volume have soared steadily through the fall months . . . And evidence now accumulating shows this section outscoring the country as a whole . . . The very complete Regional Trade Barometers released by Dun's Review today show New England ran a healthy, vigorous third in September, 1939-1938 monthly comparisons . . . And the charge that weather conditions made this possible fails to detract from the showing . . . Since the second best August to September record of the 29 regions was compiled . . . Such a comprehensive set of barometers effectively blasts skepticism . . .



• • •

DISSIDENT . . . Murmurs that figures show N. E. business better than actual individual experiences are occasionally wafted our way . . . The only reply anyone can make is the figures are impossible without trade support . . . Only if one is willing to claim them wholly fictitious can their story be denied . . . Someone, somewhere in this section is doing the business . . . And if conditions peculiar to a particular line do not explain the lack satisfactorily then it is time to look around . . . For a competitor, large or small, is getting two shares of improvement . . . Their own and that of the complainant . . . Trade figures, checked and rechecked, can be proven unrelated to "just growed" Topsy!!!

• • •

CO-OPERATIVE . . . Bankers in the Bay State have been getting their fair share of current business . . . In the mortgage field . . . A line related to construction and building . . . One admittedly far from booming . . . During October the number of mortgage loans closed by Co-operative Banks broke an all-time high . . . James H. Kennedy, president of the Massachusetts Co-operative Bank League interprets increased home buying to faith in recovery . . . And calls it one of the soundest of economic barometers . . . While crediting it to efforts to render better service . . . Coupled with both League and individual bank advertising, which may be the key to complaints registered by "dissident murmurers."

• • •

BEARISHNESS . . . Is in danger of becoming something of a stock market vogue . . . For us it is too late . . . Even though we are admittedly disappointed in the failure of the late November buying spot to develop . . . For disappointment alone is hardly sufficient reason for bearishness . . . It is assuaged by knowledge of what had happened . . . Principally a drop of roughly 15 points in the industrial average, one of five points in the rail average . . . And slumps in individual issues like the 20-point drop of U. S. Steel and the 15-point cave-in of International Harvester . . . These things all came before the latest reaction.

• • •

REACTION . . . Possibilities from now on are obviously limited by the foregoing happenings . . . It requires some stretch of the imagination to expect a further crack of 20 points in Steel . . . And few would care to predict a drop in Chrysler rivalling the 15-point affair which marked the initial retreat from its September high . . . Nothing but the worst kind of a 1940 business outlook would warrant such bearish views . . . And, insofar as we can ascertain the very antithesis is the expectation in reliable, informed circles . . . We prefer to continue as potential buyers, looking for the proper spot.

• • •

NOTEBOOK . . . Clavett, Peabody earnings estimates have made news for months . . . The latest places net around $3.50 for the full year . . . Otis Steel is said to be very busy . . . And expected to continue so up until the end of January . . . Four quarter results, the estimators say, should wipe out the deficit of 41 cents shown in the third period . . . Bulova Watch is down for one of the best Christmas seasons in years in the books of some analysts . . . With earnings for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1940 ranging from $6 to $7.

WAR BRIEFS

HELSINKI, Dec. 4 (INS)—Reports from Tallinn, Estonia, said today that the Russian cruiser Kirov had arrived there heavily damaged after an engagement with Finnish coastal forts. The advices said many of the Kirov's crew were killed or wounded.

PARIS, Dec. 4 (INS) — The calm that has settled over the western front still prevailed today save for minor patrol activity north of Bitche.

HELSINKI, Dec. 4 (INS) — After completing a reconnaissance flight Finnish military authorities today denied rumors that artillery fire had set fire to the Soviet naval base at Kronstadt at the head of the gulf of Finland. They said the rumors resulted from terrific explosions and flames caused by land mines near Terijoki at the Karelian frontier.

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 4 (INS)— Negotiations are under way to form a national union government in Sweden as a measure of preparation against possible Soviet agression, it was reported today.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 4 (AP) A movement was afoot today among American nations to condemn publicly Soviet Russia's invasion of Finland, Jose Maria Cantilo, Argentine foreign minister, announced today following an exchange of views with Uruguay.

EMPLOYMENT UP, PRODUCTION ALSO

NEW YORK, Dec. 4 (INS)—Material gains in employment and production volume in manufacturing industries, as well as an optimistic outlook for the future, were reflected today in a compilation of a "business condition" survey conducted by the National Association of Manufacturers among its more than 6000 members.

Replying to a questionnaire, 65.4 per cent declared they believed production levels for the next six months would be as good, or even higher than at present.

London Metal Mart

LONDON, Dec. 4 (AP)—Bar silver 23¼d, unchanged. (Equivalent 42.62 cents on the dollar basis and $4.93 to the pound.)

Stocks Fail To Maintain Feeble Rally

NEW YORK, Dec. 4 (AP)—Feeble efforts at a rally in today's stock market were not good enough and early selective gains of fractions to around a point were later converted into declines of as much.

It was a sleepy session from the start and the ticker tape frequently came to a full stop near mid-day.

A shade lower were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Boeing, Sperry, N. Y. Central, du Pont, Allied Chemical and Union Carbide.

Noon prices. Chrysler 84, off ⅛, General Motors 52½, off ¾; Bethlehem Steel 79, off ⅛; U. S. Steel 65½, off ⅜; Allied Chemical 171½, off ⅛; duPont 176¾, off 1; American Smelting 48¼, up ¼; Westinghouse Electric 108½, off ⅓; U. S. Rubber 37⅝, off ¼; Sears Roebuck 79½, off ⅜.

Among resistant spots were Johns-Manville, Cluett Peabody, Standard Oil of N. J., and International Harvester.

Traders started the new week without definite market opinions and the majority of commission house customers either stood aside or kept commitments light either way.

The cloudy foreign outlook, including the Russian-Finnish war, was seen as a restraining influence and cheerful business and industrial developments on the home front were no more of a speculative spur than in the past several weeks.

Bonds improved in spots and commodities steadied. European markets did little.

Market students found a grain of comfort in the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said reaffirmation of prices for the first quarter has had little effect on demand for either current or future shipments.

"In some districts," the review added, "new business has tended to moderate, but this is not attributed entirely to the price announcements, since this factor had already been discounted. Bookings in other areas are equaling or exceeding shipments which are close to mill capacity. Backlogs generally are moderating slowly, if at all."

War Aiding U. S. Business, Agriculture

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (INS)—War's spreading forces in Europe and improved conditions at home are bringing an era of relative prosperity to America's farmer, Department of Agriculture reports disclosed here.

Though huge crops have been harvested, prices for most farm products have advanced, farm cash income is higher than for last year, and agriculture is enjoying an all-around "better condition," the department reported.

Prospects of foreign demand for agricultural products are still "uncertain" because of war conditions, the department said, but predicted better domestic demand for 1940, with continued improvement for producers of America's agricultural commodities.

At the same time the Department of Commerce reported a moderately increasing export market for iron and steel since the outbreak of war, though total exports for the first 10 months of this year remained below that for the corresponding period last year.

The department said "interesting shifts" in the trade, particularly with increasing exports to South America and Africa, indicated prospects for improved shipments next year.

Department of Agriculture experts were particularly optimistic over the cotton situation, a bugbear for the last decade.

Exports have increased, prices are higher than a year ago, and domestic mill activity is continuing at a high level, with orders on hand to keep the mills operating full blast for several months, the department reported.

2-BUDGET TRICK OLD F. D. 'RABBIT'

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN
Special to the Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—Mr. Roosevelt's decision to have two budgets this year, Budget A, and Budget B—the former regular, the latter covering extra expenditures for the national defense—has been hailed as a new rabbit out of the magician's well-known hat, but in truth it lacks novelty.

So much has happened, and with such bewildering hocus pocus, during the past seven years that one can hardly keep the count.

However, the two-budget scheme was one of the earliest of New Deal trick ideas, to lull the people into a sense of false security with respect of squanderbund spending sprees.

For the first two or three years of the New Deal Mr. Roosevelt had what he now calls budget A and budget B.

UTOPIAN DREAM

That is to say, there was a regular budget, and an emergency budget. One taking care of the ordinary routine expenses of government, the other of the cockeyed Utopian dreams.

The theory was that so far as the normal expenditures of the government was concerned, we had a balanced budget.

The squanderings in the name of humanitarianism were something exceptional, outside the budget, and didn't count!

It was essentially a dishonest way of keeping the Treasury books.

Criticism of it finally forced the abandonment of the clever scheme. The two-budget idea was dropped.

BACK TO OLD TRICK

The New Deal now returns to its old trick of juggling the books.

If expenditures of the normal functions of government and for those emergency functions which the New Deal insidiously seeks at every opportunity to make permanent, can be reduced, and if national income increases and tax receipts flow into the Treasury in larger volume, by trick bookkeeping it may be shown that the budget is balanced, or nearly so.

The trick ought not to deceive anybody. Certainly it won't fool Congress for a moment.

As for the people, let them bear steadily in mind that the way to pay for more defense for the nation is through economy and retrenchment in the whole field of New Deal hog-wild spending.

SEN. MEAD URGES AID TO SMALL BUSINESS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (INS)—Sen. Mead (D.) of New York said in a prepared statement here that small business, handicapped by a long period of credit strangulation, cannot revive unless given prompt access to long-term credit.

Reasserting the belief that legislation to provide such facility for small business seeking capital is an immediate, national need, Mead called attention to a business loan bill which he will sponsor in the coming session of Congress. He said this legislation would be "applauded by bankers and businessmen alike."

"Evidence of the credit needs of small and intermediate-size business has frequently been submitted to congressional committees, and it has been emphasized by any number of studies made by private agencies.

"The implication of several recent statements on the problem is that these needs are now being adequately met and that small business is in a relatively happy position with an abundance of capital and credit at its command.

"The letters of complaint and protest which daily pour into my office from reputable, reliable firms throughout the country contradict any such complacent assumption."

Mead said local banks are making a "wholesome renewed effort" to solve the credit problem, and that this was a salutary trend which should be encouraged, looking toward the possibility of the Federal government's withdrawal from the function of making direct industrial loans.

W. H. Chandler, Rail Man, Dies

William H. Chandler, 68, formerly of Boston and a well-known railroad man, died last night at his New York home, it was reported today.

He was manager of the traffic bureau of the Merchants Associates of New York and former president of the New England Traffic League. Associated with the Boston Chamber of Commerce from 1915 to 1924, he was also a member of the New England railroad rate-making committee.

Funeral services will be held in New York.

Military Martyrs: Cadets Give Their A

THE REAL HEROES OF SATURDAY'S SOUP game at Philadelphia were not Army and Navy's 5 mottled athletes who risked blood and bones on the going at the Sesquicentenn dium. Hardiest heroes w 4100 tailored troopers who s slickers, flasks or gumshoes rainswept heights while the board freshness melted an mouse-gray and blue masse gradually from soggy lave soaked purples.

AUSTEN LAKE

Fog, thick as clotted cr tled over the big concrete where the upper tier of the were shrouded in fog—as from the action as though th camping in the Pocono tains. Only the pinpoints o light in the press rim pier gloom. And only the braze in the electric horns let the know what the tiny, movin on the field below were doing.

And though, officially, the Cadets were on leave from the kickoff until midnight and might, permissibly, have climb the slopes and found shelter under the stands, they scorn sissy implications and remained yelling their nursery jingles last white line was crossed. Raindrops, big as aspirin pills, p their platter hats, guttering down their neckbands and ov their boots. The folds of their capes made spillways and wh left there were puddles where they sat.

Nor did the fact that they had no change of wardrobe twil selves and the haul back to West Point and Annapolis dampe fun. After the game they strolled Philaedlphia's downtown squiring lovely debutante ladies or sitting around hotel fo batchelor groups, unmindful of their moisture as a flock of

By comparison the Army and Navy players were fortu having regimentals dry and trim in the locker caverns un stands. So having enjoyed a hot sponge and a brisk towellin turned out as spruce and starchy as the day—their forms we fitted by the Academy quartermasters.

Kankakee Kids' Big Moment

THE ARMY-NAVY GAME ITSELF WASN'T spectacular. dramatic moment occurred before the kickoff when the two Kan Ill., captains, Allan Bergner of Navy and Harry Stella of Army m the center of the pitch and stood grinning and pumping each other's hands. For here was the big, culminating moment in the lives of two lads who had grown up as Kankakee schoolboys, filched frankfurts from the same butcher's tailboard, smoked corn-tassel cigars behind Ruben's bakery, graduated from high school and gone their several directions to meet again in the middle of the Sesquicentennial dimple.

As a game official I have watched many college leaders come together for the pre-game punctilio. Usually they duck their heads in mutual recognition, look grim and worried as the coin spins its bright arc and part with hasty mumbles. But big Allan Bergner and blocky Harry Stella, gave each other a brotherly hug, faking fraternal punches at each other's jaw.

"This is it, Babe," said Stella, as one who had dreamed of a major moment. "We're gonna get-chu!"

"Huh, little man," scoffed Bergner. "Watch us pile it on." They stayed on grinning and babbling while Referee Friesell fidgeted with his silver dollar and the eyes of the 102,000 witnesses watched through the mist. But the two kids stayed savoring their brief moment, reviewing the pageant of their boyhood years. Next June each would graduate, receive an embossed commission from the hands of the President and be detailed to their posts. Stella will be attached to some military outfit in a remote corner of the country and Bergner will see sea duty on some floating fortress. In the course of their careers they will meet seldom, possibly not again till they are gray elders with service ribbons on their chests, gold braid on their cuffs and sun wrinkles under the eyes. But in that elder time neither of the Kankakee kids will forget Saturday's moment when they said, "This is it, Babe" and the other rejoined, "Huh, little man."

Gene Wins Memorial Watch

TOMORROW NIGHT IN A MIDTOWN BOSTON hotel the Gridiron Club, a fraternity of football oldboys, are awarding a gold watch to New England's outstanding autumn athlete. The award is an annual memorial to that tawny-haired, square-jawed man who still lives in the hearts of his former fellows—George H. Lowe, Jr., of Arlington. Gene Goodreault of B. C. is the boy selected for 1939.

Before the Holy Cross game Gene ranked high among B. C. football immortals. His place in Boston College legend was assured. But Saturday he became a tradition in a single flash of clear thinking. The incident is a topic of table talk wherever downtown Josephus Alumni come together for a biscuit and a bowl. How Charlie O'Rourke in a moment of fluster bobbled an H. C. kickoff in his end zone and started to run it out. How an onrushing circle of H. C. tacklers were surging in to nab Charlie on the lip of his goal. And how Gene, digesting the situation at a glance, tackled his mate and insured a touchback, giving B. C. the ball on its own 20 instead of having to punt out from coffin corner.

This week Goodreault and O'Rourke, whose play was brilliant all season, are the two chief candidates for the B. C. captaincy. But far from electioneering for themselves, both boys are campaigning for each other. It bespeaks a fine camaraderie and causes regret that, instead of one "Bulger" Lowe Memorial watch there were not a peachbasketful to distribute among the college kids deserving special reward for special merit.

Howard Dunderdale of Allston, New England All-America champion of 1938, will compete in the 126-pound division.

Paul Conley of South Boston and Freddy McLean of Roxbury, former All-America champions at 160 pounds, will strive to gain new fistic fame.

CHLUDINSKI BACK AGAIN

Big Frank Chludinski of Hyde Park, New England champion of two years ago, will also be back in the ring trying to win a berth in the heavyweight division. Last week Chludinski lost a stirring battle to Herbie Coonan, New England A. A. U. champion.

Chludinski will once more have to face Peter Zello of Providence, whom he defeated in a hectic trial bout. Zello is confident he will send Chulinski sprawling to the canvas tonight.

There will be bouts in eight championship classes and for novices at 135 and 160 pounds.

The action will start at 8 o'clock and will continue until midnight.

LAST CHANCE FOR BERTHS

As this is the last opportunity for the almon pures to qualify for the New England championships, there is certain to be a large entry list and stirring action.

In the 112-pound flyweight division are found Walter Walsh, South Boston; Toney Perrino, Charlestown; William Hill, Haverhill; Joe Morrisette, Fall River, and Guy Vitagliano of Medford.

DUNDERDALE BETTER

The feathers number George Dresser, South Boston; Dan Corriera, Providence; Bill O'Neil, Haverhill; Tony Costa, Taunton, Homer Robichaud, Worcester; John Sweeney, Worcester; Howard Dunderdale, Allston, and Julian Barrows, Plymouth.

Dunderdale was 1938 New England All-America champion and looks to be in better condition than ever.

In Tomorrow's American

Dave Glueck, Boston Evening American football writer, will announce his all-New England football teams in tomorrow's editions. Glueck, who predicted boldly in September that Boston College, under Frank Leahy, would defeat Holy Cross, and who reiterated the same sentiments Friday and again last Saturday after rain had begun to fall, has seen all of New England's major elevens in action, at Harvard, Brown, Boston College, Yale, Princeton, Dartmouth and Holy Cross.

Glueck himself played on three of Dick Harlow's varsity elevens at Harvard and was rated an outstanding running guard. He knows his football. His selections were made only after an intensive study of all players and discussion with all the leading coaches at the various Monday meetings at the Parker House.

They will be worth reading.

alumni are behind Leahy 100 per cent now that the Eagles have beaten Holy Cross and qualified for a Bowl bid, it is a well known fact that many of them resented his appointment.

Leahy didn't figure that his Eagles could master the Notre Dame system in time to beat Temple, and he was very skeptical concerning the outcome of the Auburn, Detroit and Kansas State games.

Following the setback by Florida, Leahy pulled his Eagles together and sailed through to seven straight victories. It was one of the most remarkable comebacks in the annals of football at Boston College.

But for the marked spirit they developed after beating the Owls of Temple the Eagles would have flopped at mid-season. Instead they came from behind to take the measure of a great Auburn club and the next week they stopped an exceptionally strong Detroit eleven.

WELL SCHOOLED AIDES

From the Temple game through the Holy Cross tilt, the Eagles showed noticeable weekly improvement. True, they made mistakes but because they knew what they were to use the type of defense he had selected would be successful.

Hollett Flies Home For Son's Funeral

Flash Hollett, Bruins utility hockey star, flew home to Canada from New York early today on a sad mission. He was called home because of the death of his four-year-old son, Wayne Hollett.

Hollett will be out of tomorrow night's game in the Garden, but will rejoin the club in Detroit on Friday, according to present plans.

Coaches, Fans Pick 'All' Team

The final meeting before the official American All Scholastic football team is announced will take place tonight at the Hotel Lenox as the six members of the Boston American board of coaches convene.

The selecting has not been left entirely on the shoulders of the coaches this year, as in other years. They have the assistance of hundreds of schoolboy fans who named their own "All" elevens to aid the coaches.

This board considers every school within a 25-mile radius of Boston.

The intown schools are taken care of by Bill Ohrenberger, of Boston English; Skip Sheriock of Hyde Park covers the district schools; Fred Ostergren, Arlington and Harry Downes, Brookline, handle the suburban schools; Bill Broderick, Salem, brings in the North Shore elevens and Jim Mansfield of Haverhill rounds it up with the teams on the edge of the circle.

This "All" eleven, considered by coaches and fans as official, will appear in all editions of the American the latter part of this week. Watch for it.

Frank is no spoil sport, and the only possible reason he could have for asking the lads to take it easy is this still nebulous bowl bid every one talks about.

If the post season invitation is not forth coming, Frank and a lot of other people will be seriously disappointed.

The sad eyed mentor says he doesn't care personally, but thinks it would be a fine experience for the boys who don't get much chance to travel.

HAS WON THE PLAYERS

This is certainly partially true, for it was this same consideration for the players that won him their respect, admiration and the final victory over Sheeketski's favored Crusaders.

Furthermore, any coach who is already being named grid mentor of the year, for a magnificent job of winning nine out of ten games in his first year of head coaching should be willing to rest on these substantial laurels. But not young Mr. Leahy from fighting Notre Dame.

Confidence in himself and the skill of those he teaches, plus an unerring odds figuring instinct led him to leave a safe job at Fordham for the insecurity of the B. C. head mentor niche. This same combination of winning qualities now urges him to gamble his nine triumph record in an unscheduled duel that may misfire and upset plenty of the same fans who cheered so loudly Saturday night.

Of course, whether or not the Eagles win this game is like counting the proverbial chickens. In either case, the college will get plenty of publicity that will attract students and football players from far points in the Nation much the same way that Notre Dame draws high school youths from Gloucester to Fort Worth.

Smart Mr. Leahy isn't insensible to this fact, and if he was, a post game incident quickly made him aware of it.

A thick-necked young burly from one of the local preparatory schools was one of the first to congratulate Frank on his magnificent victory. He went on to declare that he was thinking of attending Boston College, and more so than ever now. Frank looked him over with an approving eye, expressed his pleasure at this decision and showed readiness to talk it over in the near future.

CAN USE MONEY

Win, lose or draw, the hypothetical struggle will also bring a solid wad of greenies to the A. A.'s hollow coffers. Since the unfortunate Florida game, which every one is now ready to call a mistake, the Eagles haven't packed too many paying customers into the sprawling Fenway bleachers. A trip South with a percentage cut of the gate would go a long way towards making up for the early empty seats.

So there are many reasons besides the cultural effect on Alumni fielders that makes B. C. partisans take bowl banter in deadly earnest.

TULANE STILL OPEN

The chances of one of the juicier invitations however seem to be growing slimmer with each passing day. It is almost certain that Missouri will have the honor of facing Georgia Tech in the Orange Bowl—one the Eagles had regarded with particular favor. This leaves Tulane in the sugar circle as the most likely combination, since Texas wants a West Coast team in the Cotton Bowl.

There is considerable possibility that the New Orleans Chamber of Commerce will look upon B. C. as a gridiron Johnny-come-lately, and disregard them for some institution with a wider reputation. If this is the case, the Leahy lads will probably have to wait until they start post-college drumming for that broadening travel experience. It is unlikely that the college authorities would accept any of the smaller bids. In any case, they've had a great season, and no one can take that away from them or their coach, the redoubtable Mr. Leahy.

Giants Take Eastern Title

NEW YORK, Dec. 4 (AP)—For the benefit of those professional football fans who missed it last year, the Green Bay Packers and the New York Giants will play all over again for the world championship in Milwaukee Sunday.

Last year, the Giants, playing before 48 120 home fans in the Polo grounds won a thriller, 23-17.

The Giants and the Packers both won their sectional championships in games as full of thrills as the air was full of clouds.

In New York, before 62,404, including a delegation of some 10,000 fans from Washington, the Giants, toughest defensive outfit in the league, kicked three field goals and refused to let the touchdown-minded Redskins get underway save once, and won, 9-7. A last second field goal attempt by the Washingtonians, which went a trifle wide, led to some punch throwing at the courageous referee, William Halloran, who was surrounded by howling players as soon as the ball soared upward. But he said it was wide—and stuck by his guns.

Ward Cuff kicked two of the field goals and Ken Strong the other. Bob Masterson scored the fourth period Washington touchdown, grabbing a pass from Frank Filchock and then booting the extra point.

At Detroit a crowd of 30,699 saw the Packers, only four time pro champs, come from behind in the last period to beat the Lions 12-7.

NEXT SUNDAY'S GAME

(Championship)

Green Bay vs. New York Giants at Milwaukee, Wis.

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

FRANK LEAHY, the "Personality Kid" of college football, established himself as one of the leading coaches of the gridiron game when his Maroon and Gold team defeated Holy Cross.

Boston College upset the dope and won because it played the better football. It was at its best in its peak contest, and it surpassed the fondest hopes of Leahy.

On paper, Holy Cross looked as if it had the most powerful club. Ronnie Cahill and the other Holy Cross veterans had played brilliantly against some of the leading college elevens in the country. The speculative element installed Holy Cross a 10 to 6 favorite to win.

"If my lads show the same spirit against Holy Cross that they did against Kansas State they have a good chance of winning," Leahy had told the football writers at their Monday luncheon a week ago.

Boston College did display the same spirit that gained for it a win over Kansas State. Every player on Leahy's club carried out his assignment. The playing of the line was sensational, and made it possible for the backs to do so well. The line also hurried or smeared Holy Cross plays. Without such a splendid line, Boston College probably would not have won.

Leahy's million dollar personality gave Boston College the fire it needed to became a great football team. Leahy refused to get discouraged early in the season when the Eagles were shot down by Florida. He knew it takes time to teach a team the Notre Dame system of football.

"My lads will be better as the weeks go on," said Leahy. "They have much to learn, and I know they will succeed. Just let them keep their spirit up, and they may beat Holy Cross."

The "Personality Kid" talked with his players at every opportunity. He discussed football, new plays and the desire to win.

Leahy's Boston College players then went into the Holy Cross game, and made their coach proud of each and every one of them.

Leahy's contract has two years more to go at Boston College, and I feel he will continue to make football progress. Leahy likes conditions at Boston College, and is anxious to remain at the Heights as long as possible.

John Curley, athletic director at Boston College, is entitled to a word of praise for the success of football at Newton this season. It was Curley who brought Leahy to Boston College and then assumed a "hands off" policy. Leahy was permitted to call his shots.

Boston College Rates a Better Schedule

BOSTON COLLEGE is entitled to a better football schedule, and John Curley will try to secure it.

Curley and Bill Bingham of Harvard should sit down and arrange a Boston College-Harvard game for 1942. It is silly to think of Boston College and Harvard not clashing in football and in other sports. A Boston College-Harvard game would be a natural, and would jam the Stadium to capacity. If the athletic departments of Harvard and Boston College cannot agree on how the spoils of such a game should be split up, they can give them to the city's welfare department. Mayor Maurice J. Tobin certainly could decide upon proper disposition of such funds.

A Boston College-Notre Dame game should be considered more than a dream. Notre Dame was willing to play in Boston a few years ago for a guarantee of $50,000 and a reasonable percentage of the gate. Under the new conditions at the Heights, Boston College could afford to guarantee the "Irish" $50,000. Such a contest would draw $200,000 if it could be played in the Harvard Stadium. Even in one of the local ball parks a game between Boston College and Notre Dame would net $150,000.

An effort should also be made to get Dartmouth to play Boston College in Boston. The "Big Green" would realize a greater profit from such a contest than it did from its game with Stanford in New York.

John Curley and Frank Leahy are young men, and will try to do big things in football. They will not fail to act because others have been unable to accomplish certain things.

Boston College and Crusaders Took Chances

BOSTON COLLEGE and the Crusaders both took daring chances. In kicking, throwing forward passes, hitting the line and trying running plays the men of Leahy and Sheeketski proved themselves daring and resourceful.

Holy Cross, while beaten, played hard, brilliant football. Many of its best plays didn't click, but it always kept trying.

The Crusaders were opposed by a team that was inspired. They lost to what was a superior football team last Saturday.

Joe Sheeketski had his share of success at Holy Cross this season, and he was among the first to congratulate Frank Leahy on his victory.

Next season Joe and Frank will be back battling for the edges in their big test. Joe may triumph next time, but if he does he will have to place a powerful club on the field. It looks as if the "Personality Kid" is going to reach new heights in Boston College football.

Bruins Prove They're Back In N. Y. Game

By the Associated Press

The experts who pass out plaudits for spectacular play in the National Hockey League are polishing up their brightest adjectives for Claude Bourque.

The rugged Canadian goalie, who has sparked his surprising club to second place, gave another of his fine performances last night as his mates pounded out a 3-0 victory over Detroit Red Wings.

LEAFS BEAT HAWKS

Bourque made 45 saves and received a thunderous ovation. In contrast with the high firing of the losers, Canadiens took only 22 shots at the Detroit goal—but made good three.

Chicago Blackhawks found to their sorrow last night it isn't a very good idea to give Toronto Maple leafs an extra period.

They went into the overtime deadlocked at one-all, but the offensive pressure of the league's best team wilted the Hawk defense and the Leafs won, 3-1.

Until the overtime period, neither team was able to solve the other's defense, but once the league pace setters got rolling, there wasn't much the Hawks could do to stop them.

12,695 SEE BRUINS

Boston Bruins, in a New York game that attracted 12,695, unleashed a brilliant offensive punch to smother the New York Americans, 6-2.

It was Boston's fourth win, as convincing as anything they have done this year and as one-sided as the walloping they gave Maple Leafs the last time the two played.

The Americans, playing their second game in as many nights, couldn't keep up the blistering pace the Bruins set.

The fans went away convinced the Boston club is in full swing after a slow start and will be from here on a vital factor in the race.

Indoor League Faces Crackup

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 4 (INS)—With the prospect of dissolving the league facing them, officials of the National Pro Indoor Baseball League today worked on revising the schedule in order to permit series rather than single games.

Tris Speaker, president of the league, said the circuit had enough financial backing, and explained that under the present schedule Cleveland, Cincinnati and St. Louis would be forced to travel too far for single games.

League games have drawn poorly except in Boston, where the opener attracted 8500 fans.

Princeton Honors Star Who Lost Leg

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 4 (AP)—R. Kenneth Fairman, graduate manager of athletics, announced today that Princeton University had awarded varsity insignia to 25 athletes, including Donald G. Herring, Jr., Tiger tackle whose leg was amputated after an injury received in the Brown game.

Pearson's Life Endangered by Bullet

FRESNO, Cal., Dec. 4 (AP) — A shotgun charge tore a hole through the cap of Monte Pearson, New York Yankees' outfielder, today.

Pearson, at a duck blind with a 15-year-old Fresno high school boy when a flock of geese landed nearby. He said he raised up and fired at the same moment the boy likewise shot.

The blast from the boy's gun cut a hole through the cap and knocked it from his head.

STUFF about STEEDS

By Ken Kling

Dear Mom,

Am having my horse operated upon this week. He has a stone in his kidney, and I don't want him to carry any extra weight.

The trainer tells me he always turns his head backwards during morning workouts, and I was wondering if he's looking for his FOOW.

I have new worries since reading how the Russians have a new way of dropping in on the enemy via parachutes. I'm afraid it'll give my wife's relatives some ideas.

Her cousin is still hanging around. She has been having trouble with her molars since we gave her those three square meals.

She went to a dentist who does piece-work, but I told him she wanted the tooth, the whole tooth, and nothing but the tooth. He said that she'd have to remain in town another week, because it takes that time to remove a nerve. That means she'll be with us for the next two months, because she has eight times as much nerve as anyone else.

Joined Billy Rose, Eleanor Holm, Block and Sully, Belle Baker, Mrs. I. J. Fox and a host of others at Ted Lewis' house party Saturday night. Ted talked the men into a poker game, and after copping the first 10 pots he had the gall to break into his theme song, "Is Everybody Happy?"

Now that the Yuletide holidays are almost here, I expect my wife's brother to po• in on us any minute. He always honors us with his Christmas presence early.

I know you want me to send some long shots today, so here goes: Ceaseless, Wee-Tex, The Spotter at New Orleans. First Entry and Easter Holiday at Charles Town. Remember me to Uncle 1458923. Since he had that argument with the judge I always call him by his PEN name. Love, KEN.

Wilson Names James Pal Best At Charles Town

By DAVE WILSON

CHARLES TOWN RACE TRACK, West. Va., Dec. 4—Although James Pal has been among the also-rans in his last two starts at Pimlico and Laurel respectively, the son of Jamestown is probably facing the cheapest field of his career in the third event here this afternoon.

Recent workouts have had the clockers blinking twice and with this half-mile strip and its sharp turns to negotiate he should hold his high early speed throughout the seven furlong sprint of today's third heat.

Program Selections At Charles Town

1—Tavern, Notoriety, Winking Moon.

2—Nay Nay, Runout, Goantell.

3—James Pal, Songstop, Square Play.

RED SOX HIDE PRICE TAG OF DOMINIC DI MAGGIO

By BOB AHEARN

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Dec. 4—Just what was the amount that Tom Yawkey dug down in his pockets for to purchase Dominic DiMaggio, the Little Professor, as a Yuletide gift to the loyal fans of Boston?

Some reports say fifty thousand, others seventy-five, and some even go the limit, which is ONE HUNDRED GRAND.

Well, Charley Graham didn't have much to say regarding the actual figure turned over by the Yawkey

(This is the second of a series on Dominic DiMaggio, youngest of the famous San Francisco clan to make the major league grade, written exclusively for the Boston Evening American.)

front office but what he did have to say was enough to let one know that plenty of kale was involved in the transaction.

"How much did you get for Dominic DiMaggio and Larry Powell?" was the question popped at owner Graham when the deal was made known.

"The owners of the Red Sox told me not to make the terms public. But, you can say it was a very satisfactory deal for me. I want two pitchers from the Boston club for next year and will have the use of Larry Powell another year. And, I AM TO GET QUITE A BUNDLE OF CASH."

Queried, How much? the Seal owner added:

MORE THAN $50,000

"Can't tell you. When Joe Cronin told you it was more than $50,000 he was right. It was considerably more than that.

"Dominic and I have an understanding about this deal, and he will sign with the Red Sox provided the terms they offer satisfy him.

"I am glad that the two boys, Dominic and Larry, are going to a club that has plenty of financial backing, and I feel sure they will get every chance to make good."

It is interesting to look back this summer when everyone was second guessing just what major league club would grab Dominic.

When the Red Sox were announced as the club sending a scout to give Dominic the once-over and finding him wanting, Mister Graham, who broke into baseball back in 1901, replied:

"If that is true, then I know what's wrong with the Red Sox. Their judgment is bad. Anyone who knows a thing about baseball should recognize Dominic at once as a big league ballplayer."

That was July 12 of this year.

CUBS OFFER A JOKE

Less than two weeks later, July 24 to be exact, the Chicago Cubs offered $25,000 to Charlie Graham for Dominic. This was the same amount that Graham had received for Joe DiMaggio a few seasons back.

Graham was asked at the time why he hadn't mentioned the offer and he said:

"I just didn't mention that $25,000 offer, because to me it was no offer at all. Offering that kind of money for a player like Dominic DiMaggio is a joke. And that's the way I took it—as a joke."

O'DOUL DUCKS PRICE

Manager Lefty O'Doul, Seal manager, was equally reluctant in giving a definite answer to the time-worn query, "How much?"

"I really don't know the amount," stated O'Doul. "The deal was handled by Charley Graham. But I'd say we got plenty. In my book, Dominic alone is WORTH $100,000."

Joe Cronin, manager of the Red Sox, represented Owner Tom Yawkey in the deal. He signed the papers with Graham, and the biggest rookie deal of the current season was signed lock, stock and barrel.

WILL PAY DIVIDENDS

Cronin would not say just what amount would be attached to the contract offered Dominic by the Red Hose. But whatever it is, and it will be a rather handy sum, far different from the days when he earned $300 a month with the Seals. That is what his contract called for back in 1937.

Dominic was a holdout the winter of 1938 but finally came to terms.

At the time of signing, Feb. 22, 1938, Tom DiMaggio announced:

"Dominic is satisfied with the new deal, so am I, and sor are the Seals. It calls for more money than Dominic got last year, and on the strength of his showing last season I believe he is entitled to the raise."

Well informed people, close to Graham and his associates are willing to gamble with money of the realm that the Boston Red Sox paid close to SEVENTY-FIVE GRAND for Dominic, plus probably $15,000 and two pitchers for Larry Powell.

That's the info you'll get along Market Street, and usually the whispering in that sector is of the reliable variety.

He's an expensive luxury this Dominic DiMaggio, but it won't be long before he'll be returning some of that money in box office attendance at Fenway Park.

"Lefty" O'Doul, manager of the Seals, gives his opinion of whether or not Dominic DiMaggio will make good with the Red Sox in the third of the series in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

Quinn, Collins Lead Locals To Cinci Baseball Meeting

By JOE CASHMAN

CINCINNATI, Dec. 4—E. Trowbridge Collins of the Red Sox and J. A. (Bob) Quinn of the Bees are emphatically against the majority of revolutionary ideas due to pop up this week of the annual baseball meetings, and they're thoroughly in favor of none of them.

Clark Griffith's proposal that all major league contests during July and August be played at night will be battled tooth and nail by both Boston bosses.

"Everybody knows how we stand on the night ball question," chirped Collins during the train ride out here from Boston.

"The Red Sox won't play any night games at Fenway Park next season, and we're against any letting down of the present bars which prohibit any club playing more than seven home games under the arcs."

As for Quinn, he considers the night-ball plan of the Washington owner the most fantastic of the many weird schemes expected to be presented during the week.

SOX NEED PITCHERS

Both Collins and Quinn feel there is merit in Griffith's suggestions that no big league club be allowed to trade or sell players to pennant defenders and that all major league entries be limited to one minor league farm in Class AA.

The local executives agree that it would be a good thing for baseball if these two rules could be put into effect. But they don't see how it can be arranged.

So many matters pertaining to constitution and policies are on the docket that the big league owners will have precious little time to talk trades.

They'll have to leave that end of the business largely in the hands of their managers. Which is o. k. with Collins and Quinn, neither of whom looks for much action on the trade mart.

"We want pitchers and catchers," admits Collins, "but for the life of me I don't see where we're going to get them.

"We'd have to wreck our club in several other positions to get the battery strength we'd like from rivals. At least, that's my opinion.

Said Quinn—"I'll have plenty of bids for Max West, Al Lopez and others, without a doubt, but what will I be offered in exchange? A wad of money that hits and fields for exactly .000 and a few bench-warmers with similar averages."

Despite the pessimism of Quinn and Collins, the air is filled with trade rumors.

TRADE WINDS BLOW

One hears that the Cincinnati Reds will meet any price the Bees set on West, even if it's Pitcher Whitey Moore and Outfielders Ival Goodman and Lee Gamble.

Another has the Sox trying to lure Catcher Frankie Hayes from the A's for a bundle of cash and offering either Joe Vosmik or "Doc" Cramer in exchange for any worthwhile pitcher.

The big wind is blowing.
